Zimmerman May Face Mandamus

Board Finally Acts On Appeal of University and Normal Regents

Vote of Two Legal?

University Given $114,000 and Normals $41,800; Will Go to Court

The question of emergency funds for state educational institutions came to a climax yesterday afternoon before the state emergency board. On the assumption that the approval of two of the three members of the board is sufficient for certification of the funds, the board by a vote of Gov. Blaine and State Treasurer Levitan, voted to appropriate $155,000 of the funds asked by the university and normal school regents.

Attorney General Ekern was requested immediately to draw up the certifications and when presented to Secretary of State Zimmerman, who voted against the appropriations, he will decline to certify the funds. Mandamus action is then expected against Mr. Zimmerman to test the question of whether the vote of two members of the board is sufficient.

The board did not pass on several items requested by the state university and normal schools, holding that the emergency does not actually exist at the present time and that such funds will be passed on when the emergency occurs. Requests for funds totalled approximately $550.000. The items actually passed on by the board totalled $412,500, which amount was reduced to $155,800.

A statement issued by the board this morning gave the proceedings of the body and its findings.

"It was agreed by all said officers that there is needed to carry on the ordinary regular work of the normal schools of the state the following items: textbooks for nine normals, $15,000; educational apparatus, $10,000; additional needs, including postage, printing, supplies, etc. $10,000; remodeling rooms at Stevens Point $1,500; support for library, Stevens Point, $5,000; miscellaneous repairs, $10,000; total for normal schools $41,800.

"It was also found that the normal schools had an operating balance still available and therefore said emergency board has no authority to certify that there is needed for miscellaneous repairs on buildings any amount presently, for the reason that the continuing operating appropriation to the normal schools is available, under subsection three of section 20.77 of the statutes, for ordinary repairs and maintenance, and it was also understood that the $56,321.42 the amount needed to meet the contract with teachers for the year ending July 1, next, may be necessary but, inasmuch as the appropriation balance for operation of normal schools is not exhausted, it will be necessary for the board of regents to present at some later day the actual needs to meet the operation expenses.

"This sum agreed upon as necessary is $13,985 less than the normal schools' request and $51.50 less than the finance committee of the legislature granted for the items above mentioned."

The following items were allowed for the state university: books and apparatus, $100,000; university extension, $5,000; medical extension $3,500; hog cholera serum, $2,500; memorial park, $1,000; total for university, $114,000.

The request of $150,000 for the maintenance for the university was not passed upon for the same reason as the normal school maintenance requests were postponed. Regarding other requests, the statement issued by Governor Blaine said:

"The board was not satisfied that the request for $80,000 for special investigation is a part of the ordinary regular work of the university. A question of law is involved, in the mind of the board, and therefore no action was taken on this item. It also was found that there was no other appropriation available for the purposes above set forth, the needs for which were agreed upon, except the appropriation made by the legislature in 1915 under Sec. 20.74 of the statutes."

The report as issued was approved by Governor Blaine and State Treasurer Zimmerman.

This climax on the emergency question has been expected for some time. The suit which is expected to follow immediately will be carried direct to the supreme court as a test on the question. The amounts approved by the two members is considerably below the amounts approved by the joint finance committee of the legislature, it was stated by Governor Blaine.

Check Artist Swindled Madison Merchants

Reports that worthless checks of an unknown amount have been passed on Madison merchants by a man signing a business check of Hahn and Damon, Sauk City, was made to police here Friday by officers of the Farmers and Citizens' bank, Sauk City. There is no firm of Hahn and Damon in Sauk City, bank officials say. The checks were written on the Sauk City bank.

ZIMMERMAN WILL REFUSE TO CERTIFY THE APPROPRIATIONS

Secretary of State Zimmerman declared Friday that he opposed the emergency funds voted by Gov. Blaine and State Treasurer Levitan because there is a balance at the present time of over $3,000,000 in the university and normal school operation funds. The university operation balance is $2,561,000 and that of the normal schools, $650,000 he stated.

"By the statement of school officials, the educational institutions will not be required to close this year," Mr. Zimmerman said. "The funds granted by the governor and state treasurer are entirely under the items of capital and maintenance. Under the state laws, funds can be used from operation balances for necessary repairs in case of an emergency."

Certifications for the funds voted Thursday were being drawn up Friday. Mr. Zimmerman said he will decline to certify the appropriations when they reach him. Officials said a special session of the legislature is unlikely.

Allied Reparations Commission Sends Offer to Chicago Man

Will Probe Resources

Import Post Goes to Former Budget Director; Has Not Yet Accepted

(By the Associated Press)

PARIS—The reparation commission this morning decided to offer to Charles G. Dawes, of Chicago, the presidency of the committe which is to examine German finances.

An American thus will head the principal expert committee to be named for the investigation of Germany's resources and financial situation. The reparation commission found it necessary to postpone issuing its invitations to the other delegates on the committees aside from the American but the names of Gen. Dawes and Owen D. Young, New York, were approved.

Dawes Refuses to Comment

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO—Brig. Gen. Charles J. Dawes refused to comment early today when informed that he had been decided on by the reparations commission to head the committee to examine German finances.

Gen. Dawes former director of the budget, is regarded by his friends as singularly well equipped for the duties, both through his financial experience and zeal as a public servant. He is the founder of, and long has been head of one of Chicago's large banking institutions. In 1917-1919 he served in France, most of the time as chairman of the general purchasing board.

German Plea Goes to Committee

(By the Associated Press)

PARIS,—Germany's application for authorization to pledge resources as a guarantee for a food loan from the U. S. was referred by the reparation commission today to the home governments of the various delegates. tt was also decided that the commission's committee on guarantees should make a thorough investigation as to the food situation in Germany.

Mail Rush Begins

Postal Officials See New Record Set As Hundreds Storm Postoffice Here

Thursday night's crowd at the main postoffice set a new record in "postal shopping "circles. Hundreds took their turns at the stamp registry and parcel post windows, and long lines, formed in the lobby as early as 6 o'clock, continued until the windows were closed at 8.

An extra force of clerks working inside the cage aided the "regulars" in sorting the flood of holiday mail. The automatic stamp-cancelling machine, one of the big time-saving devices now in use here, was runing almost every minute of the day Thursday and Friday.

Additional trucks and delivery cars have augmented the fleet regularly in use, and more mail carriers and colectors have been pressed into service. Postmaster W. A. Devine expects that this year will, without doubt, be the biggest in the history of the department. Another rush is anticipated on Dec. 30 and 31 when the New eYar's day mail is being handled.

Mexico Refuses to Give Alleged Murderer to U. S.

SAN BERNADINO, Cal. — The state department at Washington has instructed the American embassy at Mexico City to investigate the refusal of the Mexican government to surrender Jose Mendez, policeman, for trial here for murder, according to a letter from Sec'y Charles E. Hughes to Gov. Friend W. Richardson, Sec'y Hughes informed the governor that the American Consul at Mexicali, has advised him of the refusal of Pres. Obregon to grant extradition.

Giant American Steamer Goes On Reef

Russian Soviet Official Denies Hughes Charge

Foreign Minister Says "Plot" Documents Must Be Foreigners

(By the Associated Press)

MOSCOW—Foreign Minister Tchitcherin issued a statement today denying that the Russian soviet government had ever sent any documents to the American workers party or had ever had any connection with it whatsoever. If such documents exist, the statement declared, they are forgeries, the authenticity of which Russia would like to submit to arbitration.

Senate Body to Launch Probe.

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—With a sweeping study of the Russian question by the senate foreign relations committee in prospect after the holidays, further disclosures are expected to be made shortly in support of the state department's charges of revolutionary soviet propaganda in the U. S.

The contention in some quarters favoring recognition of the Russian government that the propaganda for a proletarian revolution in America emanates from the communist international and not from the soviet government, is regarded as merely a quibble by the state department, which holds that it is impossible to draw a line of distinction between the two.

A resolution by Sen. Borah, urging the president to extend recognition to the soviet government will provide the basis of the senate inquiry. Sen. Borah and Sen. Norris, Neb., charged yesterday that there was no proof of the alleged activities on the part of the Russian authorities, but Secty Hughes is said to have collected evidence, with the aid of the department of justice, which he regards as establishing definitely the responsibility of Moscow for a movement to undermine the American government.

Senators Norris and Borah charged that Mr. Hughes based his note to the soviet authorities, rejecting Tchitcherin's overtures which followed President Coolidge's message on five-year-old evidence collected by the department of justice.

At the state department it was stated that the Zinoviev instructions to American communists made public Wednesday were issued last August.

Ridiculing the department of justice's evidence of soviet propaganda, Mr Norris insisted that "not one scintilla of evidence has been produced yet to show that the government of Russia is trying to overthrow our government."

Satirically picturing the department of justice as engaged in raids at which orders were given to seize every man with whiskers, Mr. Norris warned Secty. Hughes and Sen Lodge against "walking down Pennsylvania ave. arm in arm" lest they fall victims, too.

Boy, Page Dame Nicotine! Our Stomachs Ache

(By the Associated Press)

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—Men of Sacremento learned Thursday from no less an authority tha Dr. Fred F. Gundrum of this city, vice-president of the state board of health, that smoking instead of being prohibited is being prescribed in some cases of stomach trouble. A pipe is preferred, althought cigarettes and cigars may be used according to Dr. Gundrum. It is not for the value of the nicotine, but because smoking, especially after meals, is likely to prove restful and it is for the rest that is needed by many patients, that the new treatment is prescribed, Dr. Gundrum said.

State Tax On Madison Incomes Increased As Levy For County Falls

Dane county citizens will pay between $447,509.47 and $472,509.47 in individual income taxes for the year 1923, it was announced on Friday by H. R. Briggs, Dane county assessor of incomes. The figures will be indefinite until the exact amount of surtaxes due is computed. The surtaxes will amount to between $75,000 and $100,000, it was reported.

The normal income tax, the amount received as a tax on incomes of $3,000 or less, or the first $3,000 of any income of more than $3,000, will amount to $372,509.47. A graduated tax of from 1 to 6 per cent is levied against incomes of from $1,000 to $3,000 inclusive. On incomes amounting to more than $3,000 a surtax is levied. This is divided into two groups: the educational tax and the teachers' retirement fund tax.

The normal tax for the city of Madison on individual incomes in 1923 amounts to $195,603.05. In 1922 it was $164,644.86. In the county the normal tax showed a decrease of $92,6[illegible]9.40, Mr. Briggs reported.

Corporation income taxes for 1923 amount to $140,379.29. This is an increase of $58,584.00. In 1922 they amounted to $81,994.91.

An increase of $3,700.60 was reported on individual incomes of persons residing in townships in the county. In 1923 they totaled $22,123.21 and in 1922 they were $18,422.61.

Normal taxes collected in Stoughton for 1923 amounted to $5,22.26. A year ago they aggregated $5,101.03.

Incomes from resident of Dane county villages brought less in taxes in 1923 than in 1922, the report shows. In 1923 there is a total of $9,141.66 to be collected. In 1922 the total was $9,532.00. The decrease is only $390.34.

Sachtjen Says Detroit Is As Bad As Hurley

Prohibition Commissioner Claime Officials Have Made Arrests

"The statement describing moral conditions in Hurley, Wis., reprinted from The Detroit News in the Thursday night's issue of The Capital Times is about 90 per cent exaggerated," said Herman W. Sachtjen, prohibition commissioner, today.

"If the Detroit News wants to investigate moral conditions anywhere I can give them members of my force who will find sections of Detroit where law voalation conditions are worse than anything that ever happened in Hurley," said the commissioner. "The statement that nothing had been done by Wisconsin authorities in the last two years is ridiculous." State forces from this office have made nearly 50 arrests in the city in the last year and the federal grand jury recently indicted the deputy sheriff of the county for selling liquor.

"The community around Hurley is composed of Finns and Italians who do not believe in prohibition and the sentiment of the community is decidedly against it," said Mr. Sachtjen. "When we make arrests the best we can do with our limited forces is to take five or six violators and by the time we have them the whole district knows that a raid is being carried out.

"Federal officers have the advantage of us in that violators are not tried in the district of the arrest and consequently convictions are greater. These men made several arrests there not more than two weeks ago, which shows that the writer did not check his facts very closely before writing his article.

"Hurley got a bad repuation hortly after the eighteenth amendment was adopted and it has stuck with the town ever since," continued the commissioner. "Conditions there are no worse than some other sections of the state, notably in Milwaukee, where there are 1,800 saloons with soft drink lienses. Green Bay also has a great number of places that we have to check constantly."

Mr. Sachtjen declared that the article describing other conditions in Hurley was also exaggerated. County authorities there have been no more negligent than other places and in fact have always co-operated with the state prohibition department.

Conditions in Wisconsin, and Madison, particularly, are better than 75 per cent of the rest of the country, according to the commissioner, who declared that United States District Attorney William H. Daugherty had written to President Coolidge that Wisconsin had the best prohibition enforcement of any state in the Union.

"Hurley is not perfect and we know it," Mr. Sachtjen said, "but they have the officers and kind of government up there that the voters want and if occasional outbreaks occur, we are not wholly responsible for violations. Drinking is still prevalent everywhere, and their bad name gives star press correspondents a chance to exercise their imaginations."

Governor John J. Blaine could not be reahed today in regard to making a statement concerning law enforcement at Hurley.

Pick Barstow As Minister of Local Church

Congregational Church Members to Be Asked to Confirm Choice

The Committee of Thirty of the First Congregational church, named to obtain a new pastor, has called a meeting of the church members for Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock to act on the choice of the committee, Rev. Steamer In Distress In N. Y. Harbor

Queen Ship of American Merchant Marine Has Accident

Call Sent to All Tugs

Grant Steamer Goes On Reef North of Staten Island

BULLETIN.

ABOARD LEVIATHAN (By WIRELESS TO THE ASS'D PRESS —The steamship Leviathan with 800 passengers aboard, went aground off St. George, Staten Island, 100 yards from Robbins Reef light at 10:30 this morning while proceeding up from quarantine through a fog. The sea was calm.

The Leviathan was drawing 41 feet of water as she moved up the bay after trying to establish a new world's record for her westbound trip.

Capt. Herbert L. Hartley announced after she struck that she was resting easily, with her stern in 41 feet of water, barely clear, and her bow in 35 feet, showing she had plunged her nose seven feet into a mudbank which rises sharply from the channel.

The Giant liner was proceeding slowly when she struck. She slid into the mud so quietly that her passengers were unaware of the accident until harbor tugs, revenue cutters and speed boats, carrying the heads of the U. S. lines and government officials broke through t ehfog in answer to the Leviathan's wireless calls. There were later, however, considerable uneasiness in the screws in futile efforts to release the liner caused the whole stern to vibrate.

T. H. Roosbotton, general manager of the line, reached the Leviathan 45 minutes after she went aground fifty yards from the Leviathan in fourteen feet of water and four tugs spent an hour in freeing her.

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The Leviathan, queen ship of the American merchant marine, in-bound from Cherbourg today, grounded on Robins' Reef in New York harbor. A call was sent for all available tugs.

The reef is located just north of Tompkinsville, Staten Island. The ship grounded after she had passed into quarantine on the way to her dock.

Half a dozen tugs had reached the Leviathan by 11:30 o'clock and had made fast. They tugged away vigorously, but apparently were unable to budge her, with the low water mark about an hour ahead.

The tide was ebbing when the Leviathan grounded. It will be 8 p. m. before the high water mark again will be reached. The reef was considerably to the west of the main ship channel.

The Leviathan was completing a voyage during which she made an attempt to set a new record on the westbound trip from Cherbourg to New York. Heavy fog, however was reported to have slowed her during the last hours of the voyage.

The Leviathan is booked to go to dry dock at Boston after her passengers are landed to undergo the usual repairs while the period of slack trans-Atlantic trade is on.

Nine tugs were at work soon after the vessel grounded. Five were pushing on the bow, two more on the sides and two others had two lines on the stern. Apparently the giant ship struck first on her port bow.

The Leviathan carries a heavy passenger list. Her operators were discussing means of landing her passengers by tugs. Otherwise it appeared they would not dock till nearly midnight, if the tugs were able to float the liner at high water.

Holstein Makes World Milk Producing Mark

CHICAGO, — Kolrain Finderne Bess, a Holstein cow, completed a test at seven years of age with a productio of 35,085.4 pounds of milk containing 1,117.16 pounds of butterfat, equivalent to 1,396.4 pounds of butter, making her the world's champion milk cow for production under strictly official rules, according to announcement of The Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

Judge O. A. Stolen's superior court was a two-man affair Friday. Edward J. Walden, senior court clerk, was confined t ohis home by illness. Nathaniel Biart, junior clerk, was out of the city. Judge Stolen cared for the court blotter and Phillip Sanborn, assistant district attorney, collected the fines.

Trial Ordered By Governor Opened Today

Hurley Man, Freed of Slaying Charge, Again Faces Hearing

(By the Associated Press)

HURLEY, Wis.— A second hearing ordered by Gov. Blaine, was started at the courthouse here this morning for William Nurmi, confessed slayer of Hjalmer Lehto, River Branch farmer with whom he quarrelled last winter.

At the first hearing Acting Judge E. C. Shimodle dismissed the case on the ground that Nurmi shot in self-defense. Friends of the Lehto family appealed to the governor for another hearing with the result that it was ordered. Robert M. Reiser, assistant attorney general of Wisconsin is prosecuting the case.

More than a dozen witnesses were called Friday morning and in the majority of cases the testimony previously given by witnesses was accepted for this hearing.

Friends of Nurmi claim that Lehto was a member of a Socialist crowd of Finnish farmers and that Nurmi, who had prospered with a small store, was the object of jealousy that led to the shooting. Lehto was shot on a lonely road near River Branch, eight miles north of here. There were no witnesses to the affair. Nurmi gave himself up shortly after the shooting.

Will Fight Seizure of Launches as Rum Craft

BOSTON — Proceedings asking the forfeiture of six motor boats seized by coast guards Wednesday night while in the neighborhood of the rum ships anchored about 20 miles off Cape Ann, are to be instituted by Federal authorities. When all the boats were found free from liquor their crews were released.

The government contends that the boats, being pleasure craft, were outside their license rights in engaging in a commercial enterprise and that they were illegally holding communication with foreign vessels outside the territorial waters of the United States.

Million Dollar Divorcee Elopes With Taxi Driver

GREENWICH, Conn. — Mary Smith Woodcock Wilmot, who inherited $750,000 from her father, a building contractor, has eloped with James Hagerty, a taxicab driver. The pair attempted to obtain a marriage license Thursday in Harrison, N. Y., but the town clerk refused to get out of bed to issue it. They procured it in Mamamareneck, N. Y., The bride is 35 years old and her husband ten years younger. She has been divorced twice.

St. Louis Bank Closed; Report $500,000 Short

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The Chippewa bank in the southern part of the city, was closed today, and a report reached prosecuting officials that the shortage may reach $500,000. Canning Industry

Triple Pea Canning Since 1908, Report Of Emery

The pea canning industry in Wisconsin, in which the state ranks first, has more than tripled in extent since 1908, according to statistics issued by J. Q. Emery, state food and dairy commissioner. In 1908, 2,000,000 cases of peas were canned in the state. Last year 7,042,000 cases were canned.

The growth of the industry is shown in the following table giving production by years: 1908, 2,000,000; 1909, 1,878,000; 1910, 1,036,000; 1911, 1,320,000; 1912, 2,000,000; 1913, 3,338,000; 1914, 3,555,000; 1915, 3,469,000; 1916, 2,000,000; 1917, 3,569,185; 1918, 4,519,934; 1919, 3,317,000; 1920, 5,040,000; 1921, 4,063,000, and 1922, 7,042,000.

"Pea canning inspection by the state department has been very extensive," Commissioner Emery declares. "The many hundred of thousands of dollars worth of peas are put into cans within a period of about six weeks. An hour's delay in a factory may mean hundreds of dollars in loss. Hence, the necessity of proper inspection to be sure the conditions in and about the factory are right at the start and are maintained." Over 200 inspectors of canning factories were made by representatives of the department last year.

Senator Will Confirm Madison Postmaster Unanimously Belief

Washington Bureau,
The Capital Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Postmaster Devine is certain to be confirmed as postmaster at Madison by the senate. Senator Lenroot this afternoon announced that Mr. Devine who was recommended by Congressman John M. Nelson, was satisfactory to him. With Lenroot voting for his confirmation, Devine is certain to be confirmed. If Lenroot opposed him he would likely have been rejected. Old Guard senators will vote with Lenroot on such appointments because of senatorial courtesy.

Trial In January

Willard Peterson Is Being Made "Goat" In Indiana Bank Case, Says Hall

Willard Peterson, Madison youth arrested here last week at the request of authorities at Vincennes, Ind., who charged Peterson with bank robbery, was turned over by Sheriff Roy Chalmers, of Knox county, Ind., to the authorities in Owen county where the crimet is said to have been committed, and was given a preliminary hearing on Monday and Tuesday, according to Lawrence Hall. Madison attorney who represented Peterson at the trial. Mr. Hall returned from Indiana yesterday and will attend the trial of Peterson the second week in January. Peterson was held after two men, said to have participated in the robbery, the cashier of the bank and a visitor standing in the lobby of the bank had identified Peterson as the man who held the gun when the holdup was staged.

"The gang is trying to make Peterson the 'goat' to get out as easy as they can," was Mr. Hall's comment on the testimony of the two other alleged bandits.

Mild Weather Costing Street Department More

The mild weather is costing the city a large amount in maintenance of city streets, according to P. H. Walsh, street superintendent. The recent rains have filled the hollows in macadam streets with waer which soften the gravel and sand binder. About 70,000 gallons of road oil will be used on pavements next year.

University Will Not Broadcast Dec. 24-28

Because of the Christmas recess there will be no educational broadcasts sent out from Station WHA, University of Wisconsin, during the week of Dec. 24-28. After that, the three broadcasts per week will be resumed, according to Prof. W. H. Lighty, of university extension division, who has charge of preparing the programs.

44 States Visited By New York Newsboy Here

Only four more states remain for Arthur J. Marold and his mascot Jack whose aims are to visit every state of the union on foot. Mr. Marold and his dog arrived in Madison Thursday night and left Friday, after receiving letters from Gov. J. J. Blaine and Mayor J. Milo Kittleson. A special set of shoes are provided for Jack over the rough places. He expects to arrive in New York, the starting point in about five months. Mr. Marold operates a chain of news stands there. The trip was started in 1921.

Germans Pay Pre-War Fortune for Matches

BERLIN—Before the war the wealth of the entire world was estimated at about three trillion gold marks. That number of gold marks, at the rate of early November, was worth only about two dollars. A box of matches today costs more paper marks than there were gold marks in the greatest fortune in Germany before the war. The fortune of Bertha Krupp, the Prince of Hatzfeld-Donnersmarch and the Duke of Oldenburg were variously estimated at from one to three hundred million gold marks, but a beggar would scarcely accept that number of paper marks today.

British Copy America Breakfast Food Habit

LONDON—England is to be introduced to breakfast foods in various forms of wheat. A company has been formed to make the breakfast foods from wheat grown in England. At present such breakfast foods are almost entirely imported from Canada with a small percentage coming from the U. S. The new factory will produce foods for consumption in Great Britain and the continent, where the sale of this type of breakfast dish is increasing rapidly.

Captivated By American?

Miss Megan Lloyd—George.

LONDON—Somewhere in America a manly heart is fluttering—fluttering caused by Miss Megan Lloyd-George.

And the daughter of David Lloyd-George, war premier of Great Britain, who accompanied her father on his recent tour of the United States and Canada, admits shyly that somewhere across the Atlantic is a young man she found "completely charming."

But she can't be inveigled into telling who or where.

In 1921 the engagement of Miss Lloyd George to St. Philip Sassoon, political secretary to Lloyd George, and a fabulously wealthy young man was rumored. Since that time the little lady, who is tremendously popular, has divided her attentions more equally with the exception that London has more than once remarked that she prefers American young men to Britishers as dancing partners. But whether Miss Megan looks as favorably on the American young man for a life partner as a dancing partner, is one of those secrets no one can get her to part with. Suffice it to say if she took a notion to marry an American she would see the matter through in her quiet determined way.

Miss Lloyd-George and her mother intend to return to the United States.

German Tourist Iife Is Becoming Inconvenient

HAMBURG—Train travel in Germany during the coming winter is not promising of either comfort or dependability. There are not so many fast trains as formerly between the big cities; there have been other curtailments, and there are fewer sleeping cars.

Outside the great cities the hotel accommodations also are far below those of normal times. There is little motor touring, and few foreign tourists are visiting the most remote places of interest. Consequently hotels which once were acceptable are now very unsatisfactory. The liquor business, which was once the mainstay of many inns, has declined so greatly that bars are practically closed.

Tulsa Looks Forward To Plenty of Water

TULSA, Okla. — A construction project designed to carry mountain water to Tulsa from a source 60 miles away in the Spavinaw hills is today nearing completion. A pipe line five feet in diameter will carry the fluid to a community of more than 100,000 people at the rate of 25,000,000 gallons a day. The building program, under way since January, 1923, constitutes one of the largest engineering projects in the United States.

Ulster Buys Mansion For Governor General

BELFAST—The Ulster government has purchased Hillsborough Castle, County Down, as an official residence for the Governor General, the Duke of Abercorn, whose seat, "Baron's Court," is too remote from Belfast. Hillsborough Castle is one of the most beautiful of Irish mansions and is the ancestral home of the Downshire family.

German Currency Ruled Off Streets In Paris

PARIS—German banknotes, mostly in millions and billions, have been driven off streets of Paris by the police. They were sold chiefly as souvenirs or given as premiums, but the city authorities discovered a war-time law forbidding traffic in foreign monies except under license, and they have applied it. The authorities thought the influence of the depreciated German money was bad, for it could not stimulate the people's confidence in governments or currencies, even their own.

Continue Ford Boom Until Plain Refusal

S. Dakota Ford Backer Says Henry Hasn't Come Out Plainly

(By the Associated Press)

PIERRE, S. D.—"The South Dakota Ford-for-president movement will go steadily on in the absence of a direct refusal from Mr. Ford himself to qualify if nominated and elected," James F. Houlihan, Watertown, S. D., chairman of the South Dakota branch of the National Ford-for-president club, declared here today.

"Careful perusal of the full statement attributed to Mr. Ford that he would never for a moment think of running against Coolidge for president, reveals the fact that he refers only to present situations and his attitude towards the candidacy of President Coolidge," the statement said.

Vienna Publishers Hit By Viewpoint Trust

VIENNA—Publishers of Vienna newspapers have appealed to the government for relief from the paper trust. They declare they are paying 50 per cent more than before the war for newsprint, which with the cost of labor places them in a precarious position.

Summer Session Announcements Ready Before Second Semeste

Students May Select Programs in Reference to Second Semester Work

Preliminary announcement for the 1924 summer session, which is to begin Monday June 30, will be ready for distribution before the end of the first semester. The announcements will be made early in order that students who are planning to be here for the summer session may elect their second semester programs with reference to the work which they will be able to get during the summer was the statement made by Dean Scott H. Goodnight director of the summer session, yesterday.

Enlarged Education School

"Although the basic courses in all the departments will be given as usual, advanced electives are alternated from year to year and what was given last year will not be given this year. This makes it necessary to make one's plans beforehand so that what can not be had during the summer session may be elected for the second semester," said Dean Goodnight.

There will be a very much enlarged program given in the school of education by the entire staff and seven visiting instructors, including assistant state superintendent Anderson and superintendent Gosling of the Madison schools.

Stranded Seamen Lived High In Philippines

MANILA—Stranded seamen in the Philippines have been treated royally by the local governments, according to a protest of the British consulate refusing to assume responsibility for expenditures for safety razors, automobile rides and tickets to motion picture shows. The protest passed along to the Interior Department has resulted in an order to confine assistance to stranded foreign seamen to absolute needs.

Warns Against Eye Strain of Invalids

NEW YORK — Convalescents should take care not to strain their eyes by over much reading, and kind friends would do well not to send too many books to persons recuperating from the effects of a severe illness, according to the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness. There is danger of the convalescent subjecting his eyes to such severe strain by attempting to read all the books sent him, as to result in his vision being materially weakened.

Little Old Red School House Now Vanishing

The little red school house is disappearing in Wisconsin, according to officials of the state department of education. The traditional one-room school house is rapidly giving way to consoliadted districts. Asst. State Supt. C. J. Anderson reports that the number of consolidated districts in the state has not reached ninety-two.

The movement toward consolidation of schools in the state has been stronger during the past three years than ever before, Mr. Anderson declares. During this period, the number of consolidations has increased to a larger extent than in previous years, he said.

The ninety two consolidated districts have done away with more than 250 of little red school houses, it is estimated. The consolidated districts include from two to six common districts.

The movement toward consolidation this year will be hampered, officials declare, because of the act of the lase legislature abolishing the system by which the school council could vote consolidations. This leaves the only procedure for consolidation that of obtaining a majority of votes in all districts included in the proposed consolidation.

Middleton Chorus to Sing Xmas Contata

MIDDLETON — The singing of Weatherly's cantata Bethlehem, in the Middleton High School gymnasium will be one of the Christmas programs which will be offered to the people of Middleton during the holiday season. The contata includes approximately forty male and female voices. People of many religious denominations are included in the chorus. The chorus will be given as a community event, and the general public is invited. "Bethlehem" is a cantata which depicts the events surrounding the birth of the Christ child in the form of appropriate music. In addition, several other Christmas numbers are scheduled to appear on the program.

Steamer Majestic Sets New Atlantic Record

NEW YORK— The Majestic of the White Star line announced by wireless upon her arrival at Cherbourg today that she had set a new east-bound trans-Atlantic record of five days seven hours and 37 minutes. The old record, five days, nine hours and 53 minutes, was made by the Majestic in 1922.

Spring Weather Brings Wanderlust to 2 Youths

Police here have been asked to watch for two Janesville, Wis., boys, Kenneth MacMinn, 16 years old, and Stanley Birkness, 17 years old, who are reported to have run away from their homes. Notice of the disappearance of the boys was sent by Mrs. H. K. MacMinn. Kenneth is five feet and five inches tall, weighs 120 pounds and when last seen wore a light suit, tan cap, and dark blue sheepskin coat with a light gray collar. Stanley weighs 140 pounds, and wore a brown suit and brown overcoat.

No Vacation In Sight for Prom Workers

Vacation is here for most of us but not for the workers on the 1925 Prom. Cliff Nolte and his committee are planning to do a great deal during the holidays which will result in a successful Prom.

The choosing and announcing of the Prom queen will not be made during the Christmas holidays.

Nolte will spend part of his vacation in Chicago going over Prom details with some of his committees. He plans especially to work on music and special features.

Merrill Esterline '25, chairman of the music committee, and Nolte will confer with the leaders of the best orchestras in and near Chicago in regard to music for Prom. Benson's orchestra, which played for the 1924 Prom, is anxious to come to Madison again this year but the committee has made no contract with them and wishes to be sure that the best music available is obtained.

Nolte will meet members of the special features committee while he is in Chicago. He plans to negotiate with Martin Harris and Van and Schenck while he is there.

The cast for the Prom play, the "Torch Bearer" will perfect the lines of the play during the vaction and come back to Madison ready to rehearse the play from memory.

The reception committee will prepare and mail invitations to the usual guests of honor, patrons, patronesses, etc. These invitations will be in the mails by January 1.

The Pre-Prom dance committee will make all arrangements for the dance during the holidays. The date and place of the dance will be determined and the orchestra contracted for. Announcement of the dance will be made immediately after the vacation.

High Tribute Is Paid To Former Badger

The late Dr. H. Freeman Stecker, professor of mathematics at Pennsylvania State college, and formerly of Wisconsin, received a memorial tribute which was placed upon the records of that college and has been re-printed in "Science" for December 7.

"By his professional peers, Dr. Stecker was ranked as among the leading mathematical scholars of his time," the memorial states. "His principal researches were in pure mathematics, geodetic lines, non-Euclidean geometry, foundations of geometry, line geometry, and integral equations."

Betty Pratt, The Capital Times Prize Winner, Makes Her 'Debut'

Betty Jane Pratt

Betty Jane Pratt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Pratt, 1903 Madison street, will make a social bow next Wednesday evening when she appears as one of the youngest members, on a Christmas program given by the Junior Beavers in the Cameo room at the Beaver building. She will sing 'A Christmas Letter to Santa," without instrumental accompaniment.

Just one year ago Miss Betty Jane was poclaimed by a judging committee including Mrs. Milo Kittleson Mrs. John Haussmann, and Dr. Dorothy Mendenhall to be the most beautiful baby in Madison, or within The Capital Times reading public More than 600 babies were entered in the contest, and judging required several weeks.

Mrs. H. M. Knowlton, Junior Beaver matron, has arranged a program of some twenty numbers for the program, which will be followed by a party, and the appearance of Santa Claus.

Rev. Edward J. Meyer, chaplain. Decorations for the hall and tables were holly, ribbons, and a large Christmas tree. Following the meeting a [illegible] given, after which Santa Claus appeared, bringing bags of candies, nuts, and cakes to the members. Refreshment were served under a committee haded by Mrs. Mary Handel and Mrs. Frank O. Schwartz.

Two Weddings of Interest In City Tomorrow

Ceremonies Will Unite Couples Prominent In Social Life

Two weddings of interest will be held in the city tomorrow evening. Miss Katherine Fishburn, daughter of Mrs. Mabel P. Fishburn, will become the bride of Seymour Nason of Ashland, Saturday evening in the library of the College Women's club at 8 o'clock. The wedding will be entirely formal, with Mrs. Paul Cornish, nea Miss Anita Donkle, whose marriage at Ft. Atkinson occurred last week-end, attending the bride, as matron of honor, and Miss Adeline Briggs with Miss Helen Gill as bridesmaids. The Fishburn-Nason wedding is the first to be held in the residence since it was transformed into a clubhouse for college women.

Another wedding of interest is that of Miss Dorothy Hancock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hancock whose marriage to Percy Pratt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pratt, also of Madison, will be solomnized quietly at the home of the parents, in the presence of immediate friends and the family. Miss Katherine Hancock will attend her sister as maid of honor, and Howard Pratt, brother of the groom will be best man.

Honoring her sister, Miss Katherine Hancock entertained at a miscellaneous shower Tuesday evening at her home. Some twenty friends of the bride-elect attended the function. Until recently Miss Hancock was engaged in secretarial work at the Wisconsin Inspection company. Mr. Pratt was graduated from the university in June.

Curtain Falls On Greenwich Village Drama

New York Robbed of Latin Quarter as Old Times Vanish

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Greenwich Village the Greenwich Village which was a remnant of old New York, which was a link with the Old World, where the customs, manners and liberties of an easier-going civilization provided a haven for refugees from the hustle and bustle of modern America—has gone.

New York has been robbed of its Latin Quarter, its artists' colony has been disbanded by Broadway, Brooklyn, and the Bronx, aided by prohibition and a housing crisis. The onslaught was begun during the war, when the rest of the country poured into the Village, young and old thirsting for lives of art and liberty, and it has today overcome the last barriers. Gone are the Villagers, and with them the spaghetti "meccas," the "chip-in" sketch classes, and the "open-house" studios that only a short time ago made the locality famous.

The war sent many of the Villagers to foreign fields; many never came back. Most of those who served in France returned there after the war, having found that Paris ocered what the Village had once had. Oothers achieved, the upper rungs of the ladders of their dreams. Still others merely disappeared. All are gone from the old haunts.

In place of the cheap studios and flats hewn out of out buildings hoary with age, apartment houses as splendid as those of Park Avenue have progressively reared their ten or 15 stories from 14th Street down to Eighth, and hundreds of picturesque old houses have been renovated into similar apartments to contribute to the real estate agents' paradise.

Boy Evangelist Will Conduct Revival Meetinsg

A series of revival meetings will be held in the G. A. R. hall, Monona ave., Dec. 24-30, under the auspices of the Church of the Nazarene. The Rev. H. A. Beckingham is pastor. The meetings will be conducted by Boy Evangelists of the Chcago Evangelistic institute. Dr. H. F. Stickleman, director, will lead the groups. Services will be conducted daily at 10:30, at 2:30 and 7:30. The singing will be under the direction of Claude Underwood.

All services of the church Sunday will be held in G. A. R. hall. The program for the day follows: old fashioned class meeting at 9:30 and Sunday school at 10. Main service and sermon at 11 and Christmas program at 7:30.

Find Horses In Zoo In 100 Years, Claim

Expert Declares Animals Will Vanish In About a Century

(By the Associated Press)

BERKELEY, Cal.—Statistics recently circulated stated that horses, in large measure freed, because of motor power, from the labors that made them beasts of burden, were increasing rather than diminishing in number. But now comes Prof. E. L. Furlong, curator of the vertebrate collection at the University of California, with the prediction that the horse will be virtually extinct on the American continent in another century.

Prof. Furlong is so confident of his supposition that he has started for posttrity a collection of all modern specimens of the equine family. His collection will rest in the museum of paleontology along with the bones of the three-toed horse and other prehistoric kin.

Recalling the dominating position of motor conveyances in the cities, Prof. Furlong adds: "Daily the tractor and the automobile are taking the place of the horse in rural life. As the usefulness of the horse passes, so will the necessity for his existence. Before many years the use of a horse for the purposes with which he has been identified since time immemorial will be a curiosity. In another hundred years you may find horses in zoos. I am sure you will not find them anywhere else."

4 Chicago 'U' Students Get Booze Penalty

Campus Vaudeville Show Ended In Drunken Party, Claim

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO—One student was expelled two others were suspended and a fourth deprived of all undergraduate privileges at the University of Chicago yesterday as the result of a two weeks' inquiry into what one of the investigators termed "the most disgraceful affair in the history of the University."

The "affair" for which the expulsion and suspensions were moted out, took place on settlement night December 8, at Mandel Hall on the university campus.

During a vaudeville show which was being presented to raise funds for the University of Chicago Settlement several of the male students in the cast are said to have brought considerable liquor to their dressing rooms.

During the intermission between the first and second parts of the show these students are said to have passed the liquor about, with the result that scenes characterized as "the most disgraceful in the history of the university" occurred.

University authorities, however, were careful to state that no investigation of the conduct of women students in the cast had been necessary.

Give One For Christmas

The Tudor Sedan is a gift every member of the family will share. It adds to daily happiness. It will extend the joyous spirit of Christmas to every day of the year.

This new Ford type is of an exceptionally pleasing design. Wide doors opening forward, folding right front seat, and a roomy interior make it a convenient car to use; its high radiator, broad cowl, sun visor, and large windows make it stylish in appearance. Yet it is sold at the lowest price ever asked for a Sedan—only $590 f. o. b. Detroit.

The rich, permanent luster of its finish, the quiet good taste of its upholstery, and the ornamental treatment of its full-nickeled hardware, all help to make it a car you are proud to drive.

Flo Leeds, waiting on customer in Fifth Avenue, N. Y., shop.

Flo Leeds, "the other woman" in the divorce fight of James A. Stillman, millionaire New York banker, and "Fifi" Potter Stillman, is now working as a saleslady in a Fifth Avenue apparel shop in New York city "trying to forget" the notoriety drawn through her affair with Stillman. And she has asked Mrs. Stillman to patronize her shop. Mrs. Stillman hasn't agreed but has said that the effort was "a creditable one."

Sailstad And Girl to Face Court Dec. 28

Will Be Sentenced Following Guilty Plea Entered On Thursday

(By the Associated Press)

SUPERIOR, Wis. — Edward J. Sailstad and Dorothy Anderson will be sentenced on Friday, Dec. 28, when they will appear before Judge Archibald Mc Kay in superior court here, Dist. Atty. Robert E. Kennedy, announced Thursday.

When arraigned before Municipal Judge F. S. Parker, Thursday afternoon on a charge of arson, resulting from the burning of Sailstad's summer cottage at Lake Nebagamon in which the body of a man had been placed to make it appear Sailstad had perished, the couple pleaded guilty and were bound over to superior court for sentence.

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO—A writ of error filed on behalf of the New York Life Insurance Co. to obtain an appeal from an award of insurance to the supposed widow of Edward J. Sailstad was Thursday dismissed in the U. S. circuit court of appeals.

Judges Evan A. Evans and Geo. T. Page, in dismissing the writ, remanded the case to the district court of Superior, Wis., where the decision awarding $12,000 insurance to Mrs. Leona Sailstad was rendered. Since the case was argued before the circuit court of appeals the "deceased" was reported found alive.

Counsel for the insurance company, George Hanich, Madison, Wis., and counsel for Mrs. Richardson, Cadigan and Cadigan of Superior yesterday filed a stipulation agreement to have the writ dismissed and the case referred to the district court.

Tenth Ward to Have Big Tree ForCommunity

Will Distribute Gifts; To Organize Caroling Groups

The Tenth Ward association will celebrate the tenth anniversary of its formation with a community Christmas tree in Wingra Park. The tree will be beautifully illuminated with 300 electric lights of varied color, beginning Saturday.

Gifts for needy families are solicited. They will be received at the tree any time Monday until 7 p. m. At that time they will be turned over to the Public Welfare association to be distributed. Toys of all kinds for the little ones, Christmas dinners or contributions toward Christmas dinners, will be appreciated. Donations of food or clothing will be distributed.

Officers of the Community Union have asked the choirs of the Westminster and St. Andrew's churches to organize groups of carolers, to go out Christmas eve and sing in Wingra Park streets. Contributions toward the expense of lighting the tree are asked to send their money to Mrs. A. O. Barton, 1914 Madison street, treasurer. Other officers of the association are Prof. J. T. Rood, president, and Chester C. Platt, secretary.

Swedish Prince Writes Play; It's Accepted

STOCKHOLM—Prince William of Sweden, second son of King Gustaf V, who has made a reputation as a big game hunter, a poet, and a dramatic critic, is now also a dramatist, his first play having been accepted for production by the Swedish Theater in Stockholm. Prince William's play is entitled "Kinangozi," the word being of African origin an dsignifying "guide." The scenes are laid in Africa.

Leading scientists of America and Canada will be represented in the 15 sectional meetings representing all phases and branches of science. The sesions will be held at the University of Cincinnati, December 27-January 2.

German Counterfeiters Mad at Exchange Rate

BERLIN—Counterfeiters are adding their complaints to the general chorus about exchange. They protest becaus, having gon to much trouble and expense to procure spurious billion mark notes, they find, by the time there are ready for handling, that a billion marks has so little value that their enterprise was not worth while.

Cotton Crop In Egypt Drops, Says Forecast

MANCHESTER, England—According to a cable from Egypt, the Alexandria General Produce association estimates the Egyptian cotton crop for the current season at 5,960,000 cantars. This compares with a yield for the past season of 6,684,000 cantars and 5,488,000 cantars in 1921-22. (A cantar is about 100 pounds.)

Floating Mines Still Menace In North Sea

CHRSTIANA—Mines scattered over the North Sea during the war continue to be washed up along the Norwegian coast, and although they have been adrift for four or five years, most of them are active. One mine exploded recently near the Torbjornskjaer lighthouse and threw a column of water 140 feet into the air.

England Now Grows Virginian Tobacco

CHURCH CROOKHAM, Eng.—About 14,000 pounds of tobacco leaf have been taken off A. J. Brandon's farm near here, where 18 acres were devoted to the growth of Virginia and Turkish leaf. The tobacco will be manufactured at Salisbury, as in past years, and retailed out by 100 agents in London and the provinces who testify to the excellent growth by sending in repeat orders.

Hungry Seals Cutting Down Salmon Hordes

ANCHORAGE, Alaska—Annihilation of immense herds of fur seals has been recommended as a measure of protection for salmon in Cook Inlet. The seals are said to be making great inroads on schol of fish headed for the spawning ground. While saving a vast number of salmon, the trapping of the seals is expected to yield the fishermen a comfortable source of income. The skin of the seals common to this region yields a fine leather.

Moving Money Has Its Dangers In Hungary

VIENNA—Travellers through central and eastern Europe report a general sharpening up of the effort to prevent illicit transport of money in and out of all these states. The frontier revisions have grown more strict, increasing the general embarrassment of travel due to all sorts of restrictions. At Soubotitza on the Hungarian frontier, it is reported that $100,000 was found recently on one passenger. It was confiscated. Under the Serbian regulations the finder gets one-half.

With Senator La Follette In Russia

Continued

OUR visit to the factories in Petrograd was the first object lesson of the tremendous zeal of the Soviets to put over their human welfare program. Not that the factory conditions in Petrograd are perfect—far from it. But the government is concentrating its energy on the reconstruction of industry on the basis of better lives for the workers.

The effect of freedom from tyranny and of having a voice and a share of responsibiilty in the management of their industry was written on the face of every worker. There was a cordial fellowship and evident sense of equality between the workers and their chosen superintendent and political delegate which I thought must have roots in past custom. But when I enquired as to this, I was told that Russian labor under the Czar was of necessity servile because of the autocratic conditions. Any sign of protest or rebellion had been silenced by machine guns.

A large proportion of the employes of the textile factories are women. It is a cardinal principle of the Soviets to care for the children. They begin to look after them before they are born. The law provides that women factory workers shall be released from work and shall be paid their wages for two months before and two months after the birth of their children.

In connection with the factory, we visited a day nursery for the young children of the women workers of the factory. These children are from two months to two years of age. The mothers bring them to the nursery when they come to their work in the morning and take them home at night. Each child is given a bath and clean clothes before entering the nursery. The mothers come from their work at regular hours to nurse the babies of breast-fed age. If any of the mothers are in need of it they are given an extra meal.

The care of the children was evidently thoroughly hygienic and at the same time maternal. The little two-year-olds had just been given their lunch. They came forth in a group and greeted us merrily. There were several rooms full of sleeping babies—fine healthy-looking babies; not one nervous, wakeful crying baby among them.

"Where would these babies have been before this system of care-taking was installed?" I asked. "Left in the care of children too young to work, or locked up in a room without care," was the answer.

Visits Workers' Homes

WE also visited buildings which were being used as living quarters for the families of the workers. Each floor for this purpose has a community kitchen, laundry, and bath. Each separate family has one good-sized living room. The rooms we saw were clean and comfortably furnished. This arrangement we were told was a great improvement on former conditions.

The first floor of the building has school rooms, library, assembly hall, and so forth. The library books are much in demand, as we ourselves witnessed. Russia is in great need of books for its schools and universities and general libraries.

Illiteracy is being wiped out rapidly among the industrial workers. Out of 1,200 employes in one factory we saw, there were only 60 who could not read and write.

Adult schools are largely attended, we were told, in both city and country. Some one who had recently attended the graduation exercises of a country school, related that men and women past fifty made speeches telling what the Soviet government had done for their education.

The government is very much hampered, however, in carrying out its superb plan of education because of lack of funds. Russia was already very much exhausted before the revolution by her share in the world war, but that exhaustion is forgotten by the Russian people today because of what followed. They count time from the civil war, when Dunekin, Wrangel, and Kolchak, aided by the Allies, made their unsuccessful attempt to overthrow the Soviets. That period was the supreme test of endurance, suffering, and sacrifice. Following this terrific strain came the famine. The wonder is that any government could survive at all. That Russia in spite of being an outcast nation has had the power to recuperate and to maintain hope and inspire enthusiasm which now exists is almost beyond belief.

Dangers to Progress

IN talking to an intelligent young woman who acted as interpreter, she said, "Of course our country is poor, very poor, and alone, which makes it very hard, but oh, we have such faith in our future." That about expresses the sentiment of the Soviets generally with whom we talked.

The Soviets' great danger as I saw it, is that in their overwhelming desire for development and for the means to carry out their tremendously big projects of education and of social and physical betterment, they may yield to the temptation of selling too many concessions and sacrificing, as we did in the early development of the United States, the natural resources of Russia—land, timber, mines, water-power.

When I asked about the status of women in Russia, whether they were organized and working for specific ends, my question was met with a look of surprise and wonder. The young woman with whom I was speaking said, "Men and women have exactly the same status in Russia today—political, economic, legal. We need no separate organizations. We all work together on an equal footing. We get the same pay for the same work and occupations, professions, and schools are open alike to us."

Everything that Alice Paul and the National Woman's Party are asking for in the United States is achieved in Russia under the Soviet government. So also are all the reforms that Florence Kelley and the Consumers' League have been working for these long years achieved under the Soviet Republic. And there is no danger of a Supreme Court decision setting aside the results of those years of effort.

An observant young American, connected with the American Relief for two years, told me that at the universities men and women lived in the same dormitories without chaperonage and that this fact did not affect the conduct or the morality of either the men or the women students.

We saw women traffic managers, women street car conductors, and one woman drosky driver. Two-thirds of dentists in Russia are women. The Russian Ambassador to Norway is a woman. A woman has recently graduated from the School of Marines. These transitions are not so extraordinary as they appear on the surface when it is recalled that Russian women have always worked in the fields and in many lines of industry the same as men.

Moscow is Medieval

"MOSCOW is medieval even for Russia," said a friend who met us at the train. This is the first impression given by the high wall standing in a perfect state of preservation as though the city still made use of this means of defense. The Kremlin wall encircling a small area within the city where stands the Czar's palace, the government buildings, emphasize still more the ancient look of Moscow.

Moscow, however, is not living in its past. It is a forward looking, ambitious metropolis. It is at present very much overcrowded with its population, said to be over two million people. As in Petrograd, the spirit of Moscow is not that of an old decadent civilization, but rather the spirit of the capital of a new nation, conscious of its unlimited but as yet undeveloped resources.

At the same time there is an appreciation of beauty, culture, and joy of living not common to the materialistic stage of national development. Moscow is rich in art galleries and museums containing the most precious paintings and art treasures. It is significant that very little of art value was destroyed during the revolution. At least we were so informed.

Some statues were destroyed by the mob. One monster monument of Alexander III on a colossal draft horse, erected in front of the Alexander railroad station, Petrograd, was allowed to remain, with this inscription engraved upon it, "My father, Alexander the II, and my son, Nicholas, paid the price of their folly with their lives. Here I stand a scarecrow, as a warning to all evil-doers."

In Moscow, Mrs. Manly and I visited a market—the largest in Moscow. It occupies quite an area of ground. On either side of the street there are a great number of small booths, put up and taken down each day, we are told, where food, clothing, books, toys, and every kind of merchandise are sold. It was a market place under the Czar's government. When the Soviets came into power they declared all private trading unlawful. But the law could not be enforced. The people continued to come here to buy and sell in spite of fines and imprisonment and confiscation of goods.

It is said that some of the old aristocracy who were compelled to sell their furs and diamonds and household goods here in revolutionary times in order to keep alive, now have their own booths and are doing business side by side with the plain folks.

After the Soviets changed their economic policy and repealed the law forbidding private trade, the people who had been trading here surreptitiously were somewhat afraid of a snare. But now confidence is restored and the greater majority of the every-day people of Moscow come here to barter and trade.

WE found the prices of common foodstuffs surprisingly low. Beef and mutton 16 cents a pound; salt pork 20 cents a pound; eggs 25 cents a dozen; honey 20 cents; potatoes nine pounds for 7 cents; tomatoes 4 cents a pound; beets two cents a bunch; granulated sugar 22 cents a pound. Clothing was high; boots and shoes of coarse quality from $7 to $15; calico 50 cents a yard; sheeting 60 cents a yard; thread 20 cents a spool.

There is here to a certain exicnt the same discrepancy that exists in the United States—the farmers receiving low prices for their products and paying high prices for manufactured goods. The Russian workers have the advantage of the lower food prices, but their wages are lower than with us.

THE Soviet government is straining every nerve to harmonize factory and farm workers. In the heart of Moscow there is an institution called "The Peasant's House." It is a sort of keynote to the Soviet policy of welding the industrial and agricultural workers together into one political and economic unit.

The large building is designed to meet the many-sided needs of the peasants. Here they can get expert advice as to the marketing of their crops, buying of household goods, farm machinery, and so on. They can learn the best methods of soil cultivation, stock breeding. If they are in any kind of trouble, financial or legal, or if their crops or cattle are suffering from disease, they are sure of getting disinterested advice and help at the Peasant's House. There are many rooms devoted to most excellent permanent exhibits of every phase of improved methods of agriculture, farm buildings and machinery, domestic and community living in general.

Because of the illiteracy in Russia they have developed a wonderful degree of skill in conveying information by cartoons. Scientific facts are made so impressive that not only can one read and run, but one cannot forget what one has read on the run. Nowhere have I ever seen more effective instruction as to the hygienic care of infants than in the exhibits on the walls of a large room devoted to that one subject in the Peasant's House. And so with other subjects taught by this method.

The Peasant's House has a small emergency hospital, large dormitories and wash rooms, reading and rest rooms for peasants. Each factory "adopts" a peasant village. A representative is chosen whose special work is to give assistance and act as guide to any peasants coming to Moscow from that village. Groups of peasants were being conducted through the building by such guides. In the consulting rooms there were those receiving instruction in fruit culture; others in financial distress getting advice as to the best means of borrowing money; there was a farmer whose stock was sick; there was a sad-faced woman who had been separated from her family in the famine seeking to get back to them.

One of the inducements that took us into Russia was that we were reliably informed that there was an exhibition of great interest and value being held in Moscow. We found this All Russian Fair very much worth while. It was highly creditable and illuminating. Within a period of four or five months a desolate tract of land on the bank of the river at the edge of the city had been attractively and conveniently laid out; good-looking buildings some of them of a permanent nature, had been constructed, and exhibits of an unusually instructive nature completed.

Chicago Police Seize Man Involved In I. W. W. Strike Case

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO—Jack Mc Donald, once an I. W. W. member with his wife and another man, were seized by the police today in connection with the operations of a band which is said to have printed counterfeit pay checks purporting to have been issued by the Pennsylvania road, to the amount of $100,000 and to have cashed many of them.

Besides Mc Donald whose wife is said to have been involved with him in I. W. W. strikes and troubles during the war, Thomas Murphy was arrested with the Mc Donalds in their flat on the west side. Mrs. Anna Mc Donald, according to the police, was suspected of having knowledge of the carrying of dynamite to strikers in Denver, during the war-time activities of the I. W. W.

Kimberly Mines Were Once Sold for $2,500

LONDON—The man responsible for the opening of the Kimberly diamond fields, in South Africa, sold the fields for $2,500, believing them excausted after having removed several thousand stones. The fields have yielded diamonds ever since, and had Edwin William Streeter, who died here recently at the age of 89, retained his property he would have been one of the richest men in the world.

Guardsman Hurt In Grid Game Can't Collect

A national guardsman who is injured in an exhibition football game staged to incite interest in guard activities is not entitled to benefits under the state compensation act, the ottorney general's department today advised N. M. Schantz, assistant adjutant general. "Before any liability accrues under the workmen's compensation act, it must be shown that at the time of the accident, the employe was performing services growing out of and incidental to his employment," the opinion written by Asst. Att. Gen. Mortimer Levitan declares.

Frosh Want Class Pin; Start Work To Select Emblem

Wisconsin's youngest child—the class of '27—wants a pin all its own and is going to have one if present plans materialize. "The majority are in favor of a class pin," declared Henry Herrmann, president of the freshman class.

What we want is a pin that is inexpensive and yet practical, or it will not be suitable for such a large class was the opinion expressed by Dorothy Kimball, assistant chairman of the committee in charge of selecting the pin.

Catalogs and samples will be studied during vacation so that representative pins may be presented for final choice immediately after the first of the year. The pin will undoubtedly be a small gold one bearing Wisconsin '27.

Annual U. W. Ice Carnival Set For Feb. 16

Gilbert Hoffmann Named Chairman; Committees Announced

The eighth annual university ice carnival will be held on the afternoon and evening of February 16 it has been announced. Gilbert F. Hoffmann '24, is general chairman in charge of the carnival. George Martin, director of university winter sports, will act as advisor.

"The carnival will not be held in conjunction with the city as it was last year. It will be strictly a university affair and we are planning the largest and best that Wisconsin has ever seen. New plans for awards are being made and many novel specialties will be on the program of events," Hoffmann stated late last night.

Organize Club

A general meeting of committee chairmen and their comittees was held last night and plans for the carnival were made. Many of the arrangements will be completed during the holidays. Medals and loving cups will be awarded instead of merchandise.

Plans were made at the committee meeting to organize a winter sports club to handle the carnival in future years and to arouse and maintain interest in these activities in the university. A general meeting of every student interested in the formation of such an organization will be held immediately after the vacation.

Committees Divided

The committees are divided into two groups one of them handling the men's activities and the other the women's. Committee chairmen in the men's division are:

Entries, Carl O. Klath '26; police, Milton Stangel '25; course, George A. Munkwitz '26; printing, Gilbert J. Smith '27; publicity, Paul S. McGinnis '25; prizes, Robert Casterline '25; medals, Edwin J. Sorensen '25; iceboats, Frank P. Stegeman '26; night carnival, George A. Carlson '24; special features, C. Eugene Gaenslen '26; music, Franklin M. Kreml '27; lights, Clarence G. Jax '25.

Women's committee chairmen are: general chairman, Helen Cushman '26, and Mildred A. Rieck '24; publicity, Thelma I. Roach '24; entries, Dorothy V. Whipple, grad; food, Florence C. Blackmore '26; and Mabla Hupprich '27; prizes, Jean E. Hay '27, Elizabeth P. Wells '25, and Doris Cushman; costumes, Edith G. Jorris '27.

New Lamp Burns 94% Air

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, B. M. Johnson, 609 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill. is offering to send a lamp on 10 day's FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.—Adv.

Santa to Visit Unfortunates in The Infirmary

Pity the poor suffering—not Armenians—students who will have to spend their vacation, and worst of all, Christmas in the infirmary.

There are twenty patients in that "temple of mercy" at present, but no one knows how many will remain until Christmas. The women seem to be either more healthy or more fortunate than the men, since only four of this number are of the "weaker sex."

Since it is not known how many patients there will be on Christmas day, no entertainment has been planned as yet but it is certain that a good dinner will be served and some attempt made to make the unlucky students feel some of the Christmas cheer.

To Stabilize Cheese Prices In Wisconsin

Dept. of Markets Plans to Form Board of Trade

A system for stabilizing prices and furnishing information on the foreign cheese industry was suggested to farmers of Wisconsin on Friday by the state department of markets as result of a conference here recently between officials of the department of markets and farmers.

The plan includes a proposal for establishment of a board of trade which would collect information regarding the foreign market and furnish it to farmers of the state.

"That establishment of some methods of stabilizing prices and market conditions in the foreign cheese industry is essential to the welfare of the industry in Wisconsin, is a fooling prevalent among farmers, cheese makers and dealers," a statement by the department says.

"In order to place the marketing of the Wisconsin foreign cheese on a systematic basis, the suggestion was made that a sort of board of trade be established to stabilize market values; this board to be made up mostly of farmers but comprising also cheese dealers, cheese makers, a banker and some one representing the public. The activities of the board would include getting all the information available on the supply and demand of the foreign types on the American market, and using such information in suggesting prices that shall be in conformity with actual supply and demand of the foreign types on the American market, and using such information in suggesting prices that shall be in conformity with actual supply and demand conditions."

Biggest Telescope In World Given to France

GENEA.—What will be the largest observatory in the world, with a telescope more powerful than that at Mount Wilson or Greenwich, is to be built on Mount Salee, located on French territory a few miles from Geneva. The observatory will be the gift to France of the Hindu millionaire, engineer and scientist, Assan Dina, and his wife, who was Miss Mary Wallace-Shillito, of Cincinnati. The building instruments and installation will cost $6,000,000. The telescope lense will hae a diameter of 105 inches, 5 inches greater than the Mount Wilson instrument.

COUNTESS-BEAUTY ONCE MORE FACES SERIOUS TROUBLE

The Countess Esterhazy.

The beautiful Countess Esterhazy of Hungary once more faces serious trouble. Dispatches from Prague tell of her arrest on a charge of military espionage. She denies the charge. A number of years ago she accused Baron Stralendorff of pilfering her diary with intent to blackmail. Her family once lost a suit to have her declared insane.

WIFE AND MOTHER OF NEW "PONZI" SEEK HIS FUNDS

Above, the yacht "Flying Fox," on which Leo Koretz, Chicago "Ponzi," is believed to have fled; and below it, Koretz's mansion on Sheridan road, Evanston, Ill. In the center is his mother, and at the right his wife. Below at the left is Mrs. Salo Auerbach, who has been called to tell about her relations with Koretz.

A world-wide search is on for Leo Koretz, Chicago "Ponzi" accused of having defrauded oil investors of from $5,000,000 to $15,000,000, but he is believed to be aboard his yacht, "Flying Fox."

Although police say he victimized members of his own family, his mother, Mrs. Mary Koretz, and his wife are leading a search for assets with which to settle with his clients.

Meanwhile police are attempting to round up the women in the case, and Mrs. Salo Auerbach, owner of a photoplay theater, has been called to tell of her relations with Koretz.

The Rev. Mr. Potter was ruthlessly critical. He cited cud-chewing of hares; the astronomical impossibility of Joshua's sun-stopping feat; the contradiction between one passage that credits a daughter of Saul with five sons and anothers that records her childless.

Then he quoted the passage "God said thou shalt not suffer a witch to live," and blamed it for the death of thousands of women in mediaeval days. That is a morally degrading thing to attribute to God, he said, as is the biblical injunction for the stoning to death of disobedient children.

The Rev. Mr. Stratton advanced the miraculous fulfillment of prophecy from the destruction of Ninevah and Tyre to the foreshadowed birth of Jesus.

"Men have clung to this book because they found it the very bread and water of life," he declared. "To deny its infallibility is to deny the existence of a living God."

Manning Urges Church Truce In Holiday Period

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Bishop William T. Manning forwarded on Thursday a letter to the rectors of all churches in the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New York, asking that a truce be observed in the religious controversy between the conservatives and modernists until after the Christmas season.

The letter was accompanied by individual memoranda to the rectors, requesting them to read the diocesan communication at the services next Sunday morning.

"Serious questions," the letter declared, "are before the church at this time. But no one, however, should be unduly perturbed. We have our Lord's promise that the church shall be guided by the Holy Spirit, and to the full truths of Jesus Christ this church has always steadfastly borne witness. The position of the church has not changed. No new statement of doctrine has been made by the house of bishops."

Board of Control Tied Up to Routine; Cannot Do Constructive Work

Before any such program is possible, however, in Wisconsin an aroused public opinion must demand one of two things. First, that the present Board of Control must face about and work out in Wisconsin some of the tried and proved methods which have yielded such astounding large returns in the checking and preventing of incapables in other states; or second, the people must demand that a system similar to the State Board of Health or Industrial Commission be put in the place of the present Board of Control.

There must be created throughout Wisconsin an informed and aroused public consciousness in connection with all things having to do with incapables, defectives, and criminals.

First, the people must be given the facts as to the number of inadequates in the state of Wisconsin that exist both as inmates of the state institutions and in the state at large.

In the second place the people must be acquainted with the amount of money necessary for their maintenance. They must also be made to realize what part of such money goes simply to incarcerating these unfortunates, and what part goes to the prevention and restoration of such unfortunates.

In the third place the causes and conditions for these unfortunates must be laid bare before all citizens.

And in the fourth place there must be aroused a demand for measures that will strike at causes and conditions; that will at least attempt to check, at its source, all pauperism and crime. Anything less is inhuman and race suicide.

To this end interested citizens, clubs, and organizations, existing for the common weel, owe it to the state to carry on, and to see that the Board of Control carries on, a program of public education that will inform and arouse every taxpayer concerning the ever-increasing number of persons dependent upon the state for their maintenance, and also concerning the measures that will if carried out over a period of years, reduce this number of unfortunates and reduce the burden of taxation necessary for their care.

1. The public should be aroused to an appreciation of the importance of establishing a statewide system of parole and probation for the discovery of incipient delinquents, and this restoration of juvenile delinquents to a normal life by kindness and trained care, who, without some such care, soon develop into hardened criminals.

2. The public should be aroused to the importance of establishing adequate means of discovering mental defectives in the state at large, and in providing either at their homes, in the schools, or in the

Gun Boat Rule Perils China, Claim

Sun Yat Sen Appeals to British Labor Leader to Protest

(By the Associated Press)

HONG KONG—Dr. Sun Yat Sen head of the Canton government, today telegraphed to Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the British labor party, asking him to "bring to the notice of the British people, and particularly the workers, the grave situation which the British representatives in China mainly have been instrumental in creating at Canton."

"My government is being threatened with acts of war by an international force of nearly a score of gunboats armed with soldiers, who have already landed at Shameen. (The foreign section of Canton, where the administration offices of other nations are located.)

"This is the work of the diplomatic body at Peking, done at the instance of the British minister on advice of the senior consul at Canton who is the British consul general, and the inspector general of Chinese maritime customs, who is a British national."

Sun reminds the British labor leader that China, one of the richest markets for British goods, cannot be secured by a gunboat policy although it can be won by a policy aiming at the capture of Chinese good will.

Believe Watertown Girl Held By Kidnapper

WATERTOWN, Wis.— A search throughout Dodge and Jefferson counties is under way for Aurelia Neis, 13 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Neis of this city, who disappeared from her home here a week ago. Following a thorough search by members of her family the aid of police was enlisted and practically every officer and department in this section has been notified of the girl's disappearance. The parents are grief stricken and are unable to account for her leaving home. Miss Neis was a student in one of the public schools here and failed to return after classes. No one has been able to give any information concerning her whereabouts and it is thought that possibly she accompanied an older person and is being held against her will.

Wales May Renounce Throne; Groom Duke of Yor

LONDON — His refusal to wed and his bourgeois tastes have brought the stern censure of King George upon the Prince of Wales and the renuciation of the throne by the Prince may be expected at any time, it is being persistently said here. Further, the Royal family is prepared for the announcement, and the Duke of York and his wife, Elizabeth, are being groomed to succeed George and Mary on the throne.

It is no secret that the Prince is "in bad" with his regal father. There are constant quarrels, and the relations of the Prince with his mother are not much better, it is stated authoritively. The parents' favorite is the Duke of York; he is the good boy of the family.

When the King summoned the Prince to Buckingham Palace and lectured him severely the Prince is said to have retorted:

"'I have no intention of becoming King, but if I have got to be King, I will be a real one.'"

The Prince is not without his partisans in the royal circle. He is the favorite of his grandmother, the Dowager Queen Alexandria he is looked up to by his youngest brothers, and his sister, the Princess Mary, before she married the Viscount Lascelles and left the immediate family circle, was able to prescrve a resemblance of peace in the family through her affection for the Prince and her father alike.

The hereditary conflict of the blood of his worldly grandfather, Edward VII, and of Albert, the conventional consort of Victoria, which flows in his veins, is not forgotten by those who regret the break between the Prince of Wales and the King. A few years ago Wales was the most popular man in the empire. He was counted as a man who would add strength to the throne of Great Britain.

After his return from India it was reported the Prince would renounce the throne, owing to poor health. Denial followed, but it is now remarked the denial was only that he would not renounce the throne on account of ill health.

Time after time the Queen has arranged the preliminarics of a good match for him, or what she considers a suitable one, only for her plans to be wrecked by him at the last moment. The last occasion was when Lady Rachel Cavendish, daughter of the Duchess of Devonshire, was proposed to the Prince.

He again showed that he would not hear of it, asd the young lady promptly showed her own views by making a love match with a handsome young Scottish aristocrat.

This was a bitter blow for the Queen. With these differences the whole family circle is divided, ranging themselves on the side of the King or on that of the Prince. The "respectability" party have now set their hearts on the Duke of York; they were enchanted with the marriage of this "good boy" of the family to the charming Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, and hope that one day he will be King of England.

The Duke of York, his wife, Elizabeth; and (insert) the Prince of Wales.

'Homicide By Telephone' May Be Unique Charge Raised In Fond du Lac Woman's Suicide

FOND DU LAC—A suicide with many of the elements of a "homicide by telephone" was enacted at Fond du Lac on Thursday.

The victim was Mrs. Hazel Harrington Burns, who ended her life immediately after receiving an anonymous death threat over the wire, and twenty hours after she had testified before the federal grand jury in Milwaukee concerning the Campbellsport postoffice robbery. Hanging up the receiver, Mrs. Burns walked into an adoining room and swallowed a mixture of strychnine sulphate and carbolic acid, according to police.

A short time later the Fond du Lac police raided a hotel there, arrested three alleged friends of the accused postoffice robbers, and held them for investigation. They said they were Tom Mason 25, Hamilton, Ont., James Burns, alias Joe Dempsey, 60, Milwaukee, James Kimler, 47, Balding, O.

Following the suicide, detective and postal inspectors at Fond du Lac centered the efforts on learning the exact nature of the telephone message and the identity of the speaker. If they are successful, an extraordinary criminal case may develop.

This probably would involve the question of whether a death threat, leading to suicide on the part of the person threatened, would constitute a direct responsibility for the victim's death as would an act of violence against the person of the victim originally.

Floor Hides "Moon"

Police Arrest Joseph Gruss When They Discover Novel Liquor Cache

Marks on the floor in the home of Joseph Gruss, 1519 Williamson st., Thursday afternoon led police and state prohibition agents to a secret chamber under the floor where were stored seven quarts of illicit liquor. Finding of the cache followed a raid by Detective Robert Putnam, Patrolman Clarence Bakken, and Harold Lampert, state chemist. Gruss was arraigned before Judge O. A. Stolen in superior court Friday. He admitted being the illegal possessor. Sentence was deferred by Judge Stolen.

Belleville In Protest Over Road Changes

Highway Commission May Take Action Early In January

Vigorous protest is being registered by citizens of Belleville against the proposed relocation of a portion of state highway No. 42, as planned by the special legislative highway committee. The highway runs from the Green county line due east to Belleville, then turns north to Paoli, and from there runs west about three-quarters of a mile.

The committee proposes to change this road so that it will run diagonally northeast from the Green county line, missing Belleville, and connecting with the present No. 42 at a point three-quarters of a mile west of Paoli. This relocation would place the highway about two and a half miles from Belleville. Paoli residents also object to the change.

In view of this change the committee created a new highway which woud run from Mt. Horeb, through Mt. Vernon and Belleville, to Brooklyn. This road, Belleville residents claim, will not meet the needs of that community.

No decision was reached at the hearing held by the state highway commission at Belleville Wednesday. Members of the commission who attended are W. O. Hotchkiss, chairman, Dean F. E. Turneaure, E. S. Welch, Baraboo, and George Staudenmeyer, Portage. L. C. Anderson, Menomonie, the fifth member of the commission, was not present. The commission expects to hold its next meeting early in January, at which time definite action may be taken to either approve or disapprove of the legislative committee's plans.

Members of the legislative committee are George Staudenmeyer, chairman; Oscar H. Morris, Milwaukee; C. E. Hanson, River Falls; F. A. Frederich, Reedsville, and Richard Kampke, Merrill.

"Ironed" Out Her Troubles; Call Out Riot Squad

Helen White, West Side resident, had a system of "ironing out" her troubles. So when Thursday night she encountered difficulties with a certain male acquaintance in "Little Italy", Helen is alleged by police to have drawn a "shooting iron". Luckily no casualties resulted. Patrolman Michael Griffin, on duty in that district, received orders from headquarters for her arrest. When he espied her promenading along the 700 block on W. Washington ave., a bit of song on her lips, he called the patrol wagon and took her to the station. On her person police claim to have found a large framed revolver, two shells of which had been recently discharged. Helen received accommodations for the night in the women's department. She pleaded not guilty to a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

SYNOPSIS.

At a first night performance in New York, a beautiful young woman attracts attention by rising and leisurely surveying the audience through her glasses. Clavering, a newspaper columnist, and his cousin, Dinwiddie, are particularly interested, Dinwiddie declaring that she is the image of Mary Ogden, a belle of thirty years ago, who had married a Count Zattiany and lived abroad. He is convinced that this is Mary's daughter, but all efforts to establish her identity prove futile.

Clavering manages to meet her, and she tells him she is the Countess Josef Zattiany, a cousin of Mary Ogden's; that she had married a relative of Mary's husband; that Mary is ill in a sanitarium in Vienna.

He does not believe her story and frankly tells her so. Each is aware of a more than passing interest in the other, Clavering, as time goes on, becoming so distraught over the affair that he goes for advice to his friend, Gora Dwight, who is just creating a stir with the publication of her first novel.

XV

She was listening now as Clavering told her of his adventurous meeting with Madame Zattiany, of their subsequent conversations, and of his doubts.

"Are you sure she is not playing a part deliberately?" she asked. "Having her little fun after those horrible years? She looks quite equal to it, and a personal drama would have its attractions after an experience during which a nurse felt about as personal as an amputated limb. And while one is still young and beautiful—what a lark!"

"No. I don't believe anything of the sort. I fancy that if she didn't happen to be so fond of the theatre she'd have come and gone and none of us been the wiser. Her secret is sui generis, whatever it is. I've racked my mind in vain. I don't believe she is the Countess Zattiany's daughter, nor a third cousin, nor the Countess Josef Zattiany. I've tried to recall every mystery story I ever read that would bear on the case, but I'm as much in the dark as ever."

"And you've thought of nothing else. Your column has fallen off."

"Do you think that?" He sat up. "I've not been too satisfied myself."

"You've been filling up with letters from your correspondents after the fashion of more jaded columnists. Even your comments on — have been flat. And as for your description of that prize fight last night, it was about as thrilling as an account of a flower show."

He laughed and dropped back. "You are as refreshing as a cold shower, Gora. But, after all, even a poor colyumist must be allowed to slump occasionally. However, I'll turn her off hereafter when I sit down to my typewriter. Lord knows a typewriter is no Wagnerian orchestra and should be warranted to banish sentiment. . . . Sentiment is not the word, though. It is plain raging curiosity."

"Oh, no, it is not," said Miss Dwight coolly, lighting another cigarette, which she carefully fitted into a pair of small gold tongs; neither ink nor nicotine was ever seen on those long aristocratic fingers. "You are in love with her, my child."

"I am not!"

"Oh, yes, you are. I've never been misled for a moment by your other brief rhapsodies—the classic Anne—the demonic Marian—but you're landed high and dry this time. The mystery may have something to do with it, but the woman has far more. She is the most beautiful creature I ever beheld and she looks intelligent and keen in spite of that monumental repose. And what a great lady!" Gora sighed. How she once had longed to be a great lady! She no longer cared a fig about it, and would not have changed her present state for that of a princess in a stable world. But old dreams die hard. There was no one of Madame Zattiany's abundant manifestations of high fortune that she admired more. "Go in and win, Clavey—and without too much loss of time. She'll be drawn into her own world here sooner or later. She confesses to being a widow, so you needn't get tangled up in an intrigue."

"You forget she is also a very rich woman. I'd look like a fortune hunter"—

"How old-fashioned of you! And you'd feel like nothing of the sort. The only thing that worries you at present is that you are trying to hide from yourself that you are in love with her."

"I wonder! I don't feel any raging desire for her—that I can swear."

"You simply haven't got that far. The mystery has possessed your mind and your doubts have acted as a censor. But once let yourself go . . ."

"And suppose she turned me down—which, no doubt, she would do. I'm not hunting for tragedy."

"I've an idea she won't. While you've been talking I've written out the whole story in my mind. For that matter, I began it last Monday night when I saw you two whispering together. I was in the box just above—if you noticed! And I watched her face. It was something more than politely interested."

"Oh, she looked the same when she was talking to Din and Osborne that night at dinner. She is merely a woman of the world who has had scores of men in love with her and is young enough to be interested in any young man who doesn't bore her. To say nothing of keeping her hand in. . . . But there is something else." He moved restlessly. "She seems to me to be compounded of strength, force, power. She emanates, exudes it. I'm afraid of being afraid of her. I prefer to be stronger than my wife."

"'Oh, no, it is not,' said Miss Dwight, 'You are in love with her.'"

"Don't flatter yourself. Women are always stronger than their husbands, unless they are the complete idiot or man-crazy. Neither type would appeal to you. The average woman—all the millions of her—has a moral force and strength of character and certain shrewd mental qualities, however unintellectual, that dominate a man every time. This woman has all that and more—a thousand times more. A mighty good thing if she would take you in hand. She'd be the making of you, for you'd learn things about men and women and life—and yourself—that you've never so much as guessed. And then you'd write a play that would set the town on fire. That's all you need. Even if she treated you badly the result would be the same. Life has been much too kind to you, Clavey, and your little disappointments have been so purely romantic that only your facile emotions have played about like amiable puppies on the roof of your passions. It's time the lava began to boil and the lid blew off. Your creative tact would get a ploughing up and a fertilizing as a natural sequence. Your plays would no longer be mere models of architecture. I am not an amiable altruist. I don't long to see you happy. I'm rather inclined to hate this woman who will end by infatuating you, for, of course, that would be the last I'd ever see of you. But I'm an artist and I believe that art is really all that is worth living for. I want you to do great work, and I want you to be a really great figure in New York instead of a merely notable one."

"You've both taken the conceit out of me and bucked me up. . . . But I want you to meet her, and I don't know how to bring it about. I have an idea that your instinct would get somewhere near the truth."

"Suppose I give a party, and a day or two before, you ask her casually if she would like to come—or put it to her in any way you think best. Nobody calls those days, but I have an idea she would. People of that type rarely renounce the formalities. Then, if I'm really clever, I'll make her think she'd like to see me again and she will be at home when I return her call. Do you think you could work it?"

"It's possible. I've roused her curiosity about our crowd and I'll plant a few more seeds. Yes, I think she'll come. When will you have it?"

"A week from Saturday."

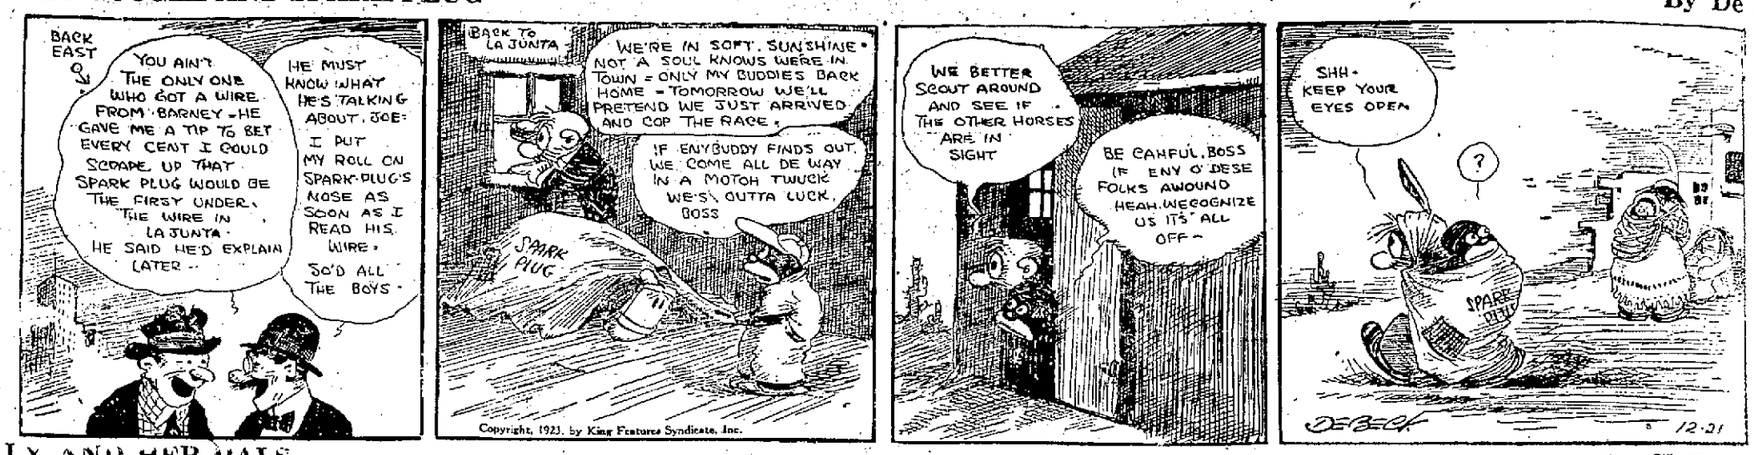

"Good. You're a brick, Gora. And don't imagine you'll ever get rid of me. If she is unique, so are you. This fireside will always be a magnet."

Miss Dwight merely smiled.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S CHRISTMAS HOLLY

Copyright, 1923, by Mc Clure Newspaper Syndicate

"Uncle Wiggily! We have forgotten something," exclaimed Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy in the hollow stump bungalow one morning.

"Forgotten something. What do you mean?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"I mean we have no holly wreaths for Christmas," went on the muskrat lady housekeeper. "Will you get a few to hang up around the bungalow? The red berries look so pretty nestled in the green leaves."

"Ha! That's so! I forgot all about the holly!" said Uncle Wiggily. "And I'll get some mistletoe, also."

"Mistletoe is more for New Year's" said Nurse Jane. "Just get the holly now. And please hurry back with it, as I must make it up into wreaths and it takes rather a long time."

"Why so?" the rabbit gentleman wanted to know.

"Because holly is so prickery and stickery," answered Nurse Jane. "The leaves, though they are glossy green, and very pretty, have sharp spines on them, like slivers, and they stick you if you are not slow and careful while making the Christmas wreaths."

"Well, I hope you don't get stuck and slivered, Nurse Jane," spoke Uncle Wiggily.

"Thank you," answered the muskrat lady. "And I hope you don't get scratched bringing home the holly branches."

"I'll be careful," promised the bunny gentleman.

Then, twinkling his pink nose and seeing that his tie was on straight, Mr. Longears hopped over the fields toward the wood, where, as he knew, some holly trees and bushes grew. For holly is a sort of a bush, though, in time, it may grow up into a tree. On the branches grow the green leaves, stiff and shiny, and on the edges of the leaves are the sharp stickers.

Nestling down in the leaves are red berries, like coral beads, only brighter in color, and that is why holly is such a beautiful garland to decorate our homes with at Christmas time.

"Ah, I see some holly!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily, as he jumped over a fence, hopped across a clearing and made his way into a clump

He began to hop towards home

of trees. "Now Nurse Jane shall have her Christmas wreaths."

Uncle Wiggily wore a pair of heavy gloves, and it was well that he did, for otherwise the prickers on the leaves would have stuck him. As it was, however, Uncle Wiggily could break off the holly branches without much trouble.

Uncle Wiggily found growing in the woods some trailing vines of the wild honeysuckle.

"These vines will make a good and strong cord with which to tie up the bunch of holly," thought Uncle Wiggily. "Then I can swing the green leaves and red berries over my shoulder on the end of my red, white and blue striped rheumatism crutch and carry them home."

Working carefully, so he wouldn't stick himself, Uncle Wiggily tied up a bunch of holly with a wild honeysuckle vine and slung the bunch of green leaves and red berries from the end of his crutch.

"It is good that my rheumatism doesn't hurt me today, and that I do not need to lean on my crutch," thought the bunny as he began to hop toward home.

"Our bungalow will look beautiful for Christmas," said Uncle Wiggily, speaking aloud in his happiness.

"I know something that looks beautiful to me right now—without waiting for Christmas!" suddenly growled a most unpleasant voice.

"What is it?" asked the bunny, before he had thought.

"Your ears look beautiful—that's what I mean!" went on the growling voice, and out of the bushes jumped the Bad Bushy Bear! "Your ears look good to nibble!" growled the Bear.

"Oh, dear!" sighed Uncle Wiggily. "Are you going to nibble them now?" he asked, sadly.

"No, not just now and not right here," answered the Bear. "You will walk along with me until we come to my den. Then I'll take you in and nibble your ears. If I nibble them out here in the open, the Fox, Wolf or Bob Cat might see me and want some. And there are not nibbles enough for me as it is. Come now, walk along with me!"

The Bad Bushy Bear walked along beside Uncle Wiggily. The bunny was still carrying over his shoulder the bunch of prickly holly on his crutch. All of a sudden the bunny thought of the Bear's soft and tender nose.

"I'll swing the holly around in front of me, and make it scratch and prick the Bear's nose!" thought the bunny. "Then maybe he will let me go!"

No sooner thought of than done! Uncle Wiggily swung the bunch of holly around in front of him.

"Stickery! Ickery!" went the sharp points in the Bear's nose.

"Oh, wow. What's this. Ouchie! Smouchie!" howled the bad chap. Then, holding his paws over his pricked nose, ran off through the woods he ran.

"Are you going to nibble my ears?" called Uncle Wiggily.

"No No! my nose is too sore," howled the Bear.

"Ha Ha," laughed the bunny, and then he hopped safely home with the Christmas holly and all was well.

But if the foot of the class does not try to shake hands with the clock and make the little mouse late for the movies, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the Christmas tree.

HOW THOR GOT HIS HAMMER

The Northmen believed in elves and dwarfs as well as in giants. The elves were supposed to be very small, and to dwell in caves and other secret places under the earth. Some elves were good, others bad.

Elves enter an old story about Loki and Thor, two Norse gods. You have already heard of Thor. Loki was the fire god. He was fair of face, but evil of heart.

Thor had a lovely wife with long golden hair. Her name was Sif. One day, while she slept, Loki cut off her hair. When Thor learned what had happened, he was enraged. He was sure Loki must have played the trick and caught him. The fire god confessed. Thor would have choked him, but he promised to give back Sif's hair.

The truth was that Loki didn't have the hair any longer, but he went to some of his elf friends and asked them to make some hair like Sif's. They set to work and spun long strands of finest gold. They looked like strands of silken hair. Taking these strands to heaven, Loki placed them on Sif's head.

The elves also made for Loki a spear which went straight to the maker, no matter how poorly thrown. He gave this spear to Odin, and to Greyer, god of summer, he gave a wondrous boat.

Loki began to brag that his elves were the most clever in the world.

A dwarf named Brock happened to be nearby. He shouted::

"I'll bet my head that my brother and I can make better gifts."

Loki took the bet. Brock went away and brought back three marvelous gifts. One of these was a hammer for Thor. It could be used to make thunder. The gods decided in favor of Brock.

Loki did not want to pay the bet so he ran away. Thor chased and caught him. Then Loki grinned and said to Brock:

"All right, you can have my head but not a bit of my neck."

The dwarf was outwitted. The best he could do was to sew Loki's lips together, but the crafty god soon cut the thread so he could speak again.

The Story of an Artist's Wife

As Told to Grace Phelps

RAI PLEADS HIS CAUSE

I made no further attempt to conciliate Rai, but let my grief flood over me unrestrained. I did not care how it might affect him or my chances of escape. All that was a matter of indifference now.

Rai was puzzled at first and wary. But as I was so evidently not acting he grew alarmed and demanded to know what was the matter. When I made no reply beyond a shrug he began to plead with me.

"Do not be distressed," he said. "I promise you I shall not hurt you. You shall have every freedom any American girl has with her husband. Only," (his voice grew determined,) "you must marry me!"

I shook my head but did not attempt to argue the point.

"You shall have everything you wish," he went on. "You spoke a moment ago about my pouring the wealth of the Indies at your feet. It is true—far more true than you imagine. My father is the wealthiest Maharajah in India—so wealthy in fact that he does not know how much money he has. And there are coffers of wonderful jewels that will be at your disposal."

I listened while he poured out description after description of his father's wealth and the fact that as the oldest son, most of it would come to him.

"Are you afraid, perhaps," he asked suddenly, "that you will not be the only wife? It is an old custom in India to have plural wives. But I am of the West as well as the East. I swear you will be the one and only wife!"

This objection naturally had not occurred to me, so little thought had I given to his lovemaking. Now, I could not refrain from asking who the woman was who had brought me to his rooms.

Rai grew visibly embarrassed at my question and answered:

"She is not my wife, if that is what you mean!"

I laughed. The evasion was too apparent for me to mistake.

"I shall put her away when I marry me," he hastened to add. "She means nothing to me!"

He mistook my meaning and his face brightened once more.

"That is good!" he said. "I was afraid you might not understand that one of our Indian customs."

"It is as good as any other," I said indifferently. "Men are all alike!"

He looked puzzled at this, but went on to outline further the advantages I would have as his wife.

As I listened to his pleadings I began to feel for the first time a pang of pity for him. He was very much in love. That was evident.

"It is no good, Rai," I said finally. "You might just as well stop pleading. In the first place, I am not free to marry you. And in the second place"— suppressed a sob as I realized how hopeless my own case was—"I am still in love with my husband!"

Rai sprang to his feet as if a bomb had been set off under him.

"Your husband! Do you mean that you have been married all this time?" His face was distorted with anger and humiliation.

"I am sorry," I answered "Yes!"

I let it go at that for I did not dare to tell him what had happened between Barclay and myself, that I would soon be free to marry if I so wished. But I had underestimated the effect of my news. With an inarticulate cry of rage Rai sprang toward me, knocking his chair over in his haste to get at me.

SYNOPSIS.

At a first night performance in New York, a beautiful young woman attracts attention by rising and leisurely surveying the audiences through her glasses. Clavering, a newspaper columnist, and his cousin, Dinwiddie, are particularly interested, Dinwiddie declaring that she is the image of Mary Ogden, a belle of thirty years ago, who had married a Count Zattiany and lived abroad. He is convinced that this is Mary's daughter, but all efforts to establish her identity prove futile.

Clavering manages to meet her, and she tells him she is the Countess Josef Zattiany, a cousin of Mary Ogden's; that she had married a relative of Mary's husband; that Mary is ill in a sanitarium in Vienna.

He does not believe her story and frankly tells her so. Each is aware of a more than passing interest in the other, Clavering, as time goes on, becoming so distraught over the affair that he goes for advice to his friend, Gora Dwight, who is just creating a stir with the publication of her first novel.

XV

She was listening now as Clavering told her of his adventurous meeting with Madame Zattiany, of their subsequent conversations, and of his doubts.

"Are you sure she is not playing a part deliberately?" she asked. "Having her little fun after those horrible years? She looks quite equal to it, and a personal drama would have its attractions after an experience during which a nurse felt about as personal as an amputated limb. And while one is still young and beautiful—what a lark!"

"No. I don't believe anything of the sort. I fancy that if she didn't happen to be so fond of the theatre she'd have come and gone and none of us been the wiser. Her secret is sui generis, whatever it is. I've racked my mind in vain. I don't believe she is the Countess Zattiany's daughter, nor a third cousin, nor the Countess Josef Zattiany. I've tried to recall every mystery story I ever read that would bear on the case, but I'm as much in the dark as ever."

"And you've thought of nothing else. Your column has fallen off."

"Do you think that?" He sat up. "I've not been too satisfied myself."

"You've been filling up with letters from your correspondents after the fashion of mere jaded columnists. Even your comments on [illegible] have been flat. And as for your description of that prize fight last night, it was about as thrilling as an account of a flower show."

He laughed and dropped back. "You are as refreshing as a cold shower, Gora. But, after all, even a poor columnist must be allowed to slump occasionally. However, I'll turn her off hereafter when I sit down to my typewriter. Lord knows a typewriter is no Wagnerian orchestra and should be warranted to banish sentiment. . . . Sentiment is not the word, though. It is plain raging curiosity."

"Oh, no, it is not," said Miss Dwight coolly, lighting another cigarette, which she carefully fitted into a pair of small gold tongs; neither ink nor nicotine was ever seen on those long aristocratic fingers. "You are in love with her, my child."

"I am not!"

"Oh, yes, you are. I've never been misled for a moment by your other brief rhapsodies—the classic Anne—the demoniac Marian—but you're landed high and dry this time. The mystery may have something to do with it, but the woman has far more. She is the most beautiful creature I ever beheld and she looks intelligent and keen in spite of that monumental repose. And what a great lady!" Gora sighed. How she once had longed to be a great lady! She no longer cared a fig about it, and would not have changed her present state for that of a princess in a stable world. But old dreams die hard. There was no one of Madame Zattiany's abundant manifestations of high fortune that she admired more. "Go in and win, Clavey—and without too much loss of time. She'll be drawn into her own world here sooner or later. She confesses to being a widow, so you needn't get tangled up in an intrigue."

"You forget she is also a very rich woman. I'd look like a fortune hunter"—

"How old-fashioned of you! And you'd feel like nothing of the sort. The only thing that worries you at present is that you are trying to hide from yourself that you are in love with her."

"I wonder! I don't feel any raging desire for her—that I can swear."

"You simply haven't got that far. The mystery has possessed your mind and your doubts have acted as a censor. But once let yourself go . . ."

"And suppose she turned me down—which, no doubt, she would do. I'm not hunting for tragedy."

"I've an idea she won't. While you've been talking I've written out the whole story in my mind. For that matter, I began it last Monday night when I saw you two whispering together. I was in the box just above—if you noticed! And I watched her face. It was something more than politely interested."

"Oh, she looked the same when she was talking to Din and Osborne that night at dinner. She is merely a woman of the world who has had scores of men in love with her and is young enough to be interested in any young man who doesn't bore her. To say nothing of keeping her hand in. . . . But there is something else." He moved restlessly. "She seems to me to be compounded of strength, force, power. She emanates, exudes it. I'm afraid of being afraid of her. I prefer to be stronger than my wife."

"Don't flatter yourself. Women are always stronger than their husbands, unless they are the complete idiot or man-crazy. Neither type would appeal to you. The average woman—all the millions of her—has a moral force and strength of character and certain shrewd mental qualities, however unintellectual, that dominate a man every time. This woman has all that and more—a thousand times more. A mighty good thing if she would take you in hand. She'd be the making of you, for you'd learn things about men and women and life—and yourself—that you've never so much as guessed. And then you'd write a play that would set the town on fire. That's all you need. Even if she treated you badly the result would be the same. Life has been much too kind to you, Clavey, and your little disappointments have been so purely romantic that only your facile emotions have played about like amiable puppies on the roof of your passions. It's time the lava began to boil and the lid blew off. Your creative tact would get a ploughing up and a fertilizing as a natural sequence. Your plays would no longer be mere models of architecture. I am not an amiable altruist. I don't long to see you happy. I'm rather inclined to hate this woman who will end by infatuating you, for, of course, that would be the last I'd ever see of you. But I'm an artist and I believe that art is really all that is worth living for. I want you to do great work, and I want you to be a really great figure in New York instead of a merely notable one."

"You've both taken the conceit out of me and hucked me up. . . . But I want you to meet her, and I don't know how to bring it about. I have an idea that your instinct would get somewhere near the truth."

"Suppose I give a party, and a day or two before, you ask her casually if she would like to come—or put it to her in any way you think best. Nobody calls these days, but I have an idea she would. People of that type rarely renounce the formalities. Then, if I'm really clever, I'll make her think she'd like to see me again and she will be at home when I return her call. Do you think you could work it?"

"It's possible. I've roused her curiosity about our crowd and I'll plant a few more seeds. Yes, I think she'll come. When will you have it?"

"A week from Saturday."

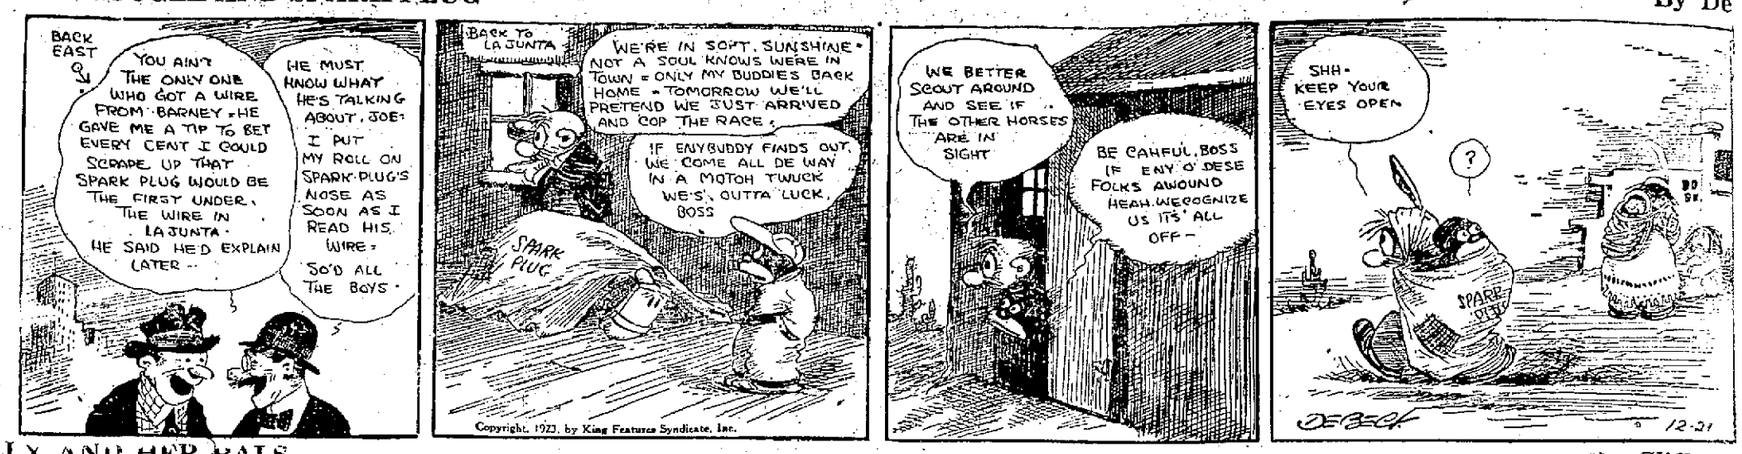

"Good. You're a brick, Gora. And don't imagine you'll ever get rid of me. If she is unique, so are you. This fireside will always be a magnet."

Miss Dwight merely smiled.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S CHRISTMAS HOLLY

"Uncle Wiggily! We have forgotten something," exclaimed Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy in the hollow stump bungalow one morning.

"Forgotten something. What do you mean?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

She poses for an artist of great renown. Great love comes to her and is returned by the artist but the union is bitterly opposed by the artists cultured family. Valerie offers to become his common law wife and such a liason is nearly effected. A dramatic conclusion reunites the lovers. Corinne Griffith plays the heroine. The artist is played by Conway Tearle. Elliot Dexter, Doris May, Hobart Bosworth, Bryant Washburn, Phyllis Haver, Wally Van and Harry Meyers are in the supporting cast.

The play is a screen adaption of Blanche Upright's novel "The Valley of Content" which has had a wide vogue. The book has enjoyed great success and the screen and the screen dramatization has all the power of the story. "Pleasure Mad" has a cast of ability headed by Mary Alden.

As the extra attraction there will be the Original Seven Florida Entertainers, direct from their Chicago triumphs presenting a syncopating jazz band ensembel sure to please. "Defying Destiny" will be seen for the last times today and tomorrow.

OWEN MOORE HEADS CAST IN "THUNDERGATE"

Owen Moore, one of the screen's foremost comedy and dramatic players, enacts the principle role in "Thundergate," a tensely dramatic picturization of Sidney Herschel Small's novel, "The Lord of Thundergate," which is now showing at the Strand.

Few actors in pictures today have had such a wide experience before the camera as Moore, and it was because of his extensive and versatile career that he was chosen for the difficult leading role in "Thundergate."

The added features are a two reel Sunshine comedy "Dance Or Die" and latest Fox News. Coming Sunday Dinky Dean in "A Prince of A King."

COMEDY, MUSIC MIXED IN ORPHEUM BILL

Dancers, probably some of the cleverest that have been here lately, Gattison Jones and Elsie Elliott, help Hal Fischer's Collegiate orchestra become by far the best act on the current Orpheum program. These nimble prancers step out from the first gong sounded by the saxophone and run through a fast set of capers, both singly and in pairs. Miss Elliott does a gymnastic number that should have been awarded wth more acclaim. Mr. Jones is a fast stepper and graceful in the act. The orchestra is a harmonious group gathered by Mr. Fisher that plays syncopated notes very nicely. O'Neil and Plunkett are two blackface comedians whose differences over a crap game caused some merriment. The better part of their entertainment comes last when they start a softshoe and clowning dance. Senator Murphy has arranged to settle the troubles of a troubled world in a humorous monologue that is better and worse tha nlast years oration. He has worked in some new stuff that seems to take well and his delivery is up to par. Page, Hack and Mack perform a thriller after the preliminaries of strong arm work have warmed them up. One of the trio dives off a pile of barrels into the waiting arms of a trustful companion. Harry and Harriet Seeback do their bag punching activities again. They know the things necessary to keep the bags abounding. Leonard and Barnett sang several songs. They tried hard to please.—H. D. S.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Suet Pudding— One cup ground suet, one cup molasses, one cup sour milk, one and one-half teaspoons soda, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon cloves, one-half teaspoon salt, one cup dates, one-half cup nut meats, two and three-fourths cups flour. Add molasses and sour milk to suet; add two cups flour, mixed and sifted with soda, salt and spices; add fruit and nuts dredged with remaining flour. Mix thoroughly turn into greased mould, cover and steam four hours. You may prefer one-half cup brown sugar and one-half of molasses to the cup of molasses.

Cranberry Tarts —Take two and one-half cup cranberries, one and one-half cups sugar and one-half cup water. Cook together ten minutes. When cool pour into individual paste-lined tins. For the pastry use equal portions of shortening and pastry flour some salt and enough iced water to make very stiff paste.

Southdown Potatoes — Remove part of top skin of baked potatoes, remove contents, mash thoroughly with cheese, milk, salt and paprika, beat well and return to shells. Return to oven to brown.

In making the hot biscuits use shortening generously to make an extra rich biscuit. The outside stalks of celery you can use for the cream soup and the inner stalks of celery are filled with cheese creamed with milk, the result—golden rods. The liver and onions are fried in olive oil.

SUGGESTIONS

Novel Match Scratcher—To avoid matches being scratched on wall paper almost as much as on the match scratcher, remove the glass from a small oval picture frame and frame a piece of sand paper the same as a picture. Put a small screw eye on top of the frame, allowing it to hang flat against the wall. The frame prevents the match being carried over the edge of sandpaper onto the wall.

If a cork is too large for a bottle, cut a wedge-shaped piece from the center, and a good fit will be the result. Where a cork is not big enough, wind a strip of paper round it, and so increase the size. A substitute for a cork may be formed by winding a long strip of paper round until the desired size is obtained. The paper must be rolled tightly, and the end should be fixed with sealing wax.

Jersey Theaters Plan Religious Services

JERSEY CITY—With motion pictures and theatricals barred in theaters here on Sunday, theater owners today announced that on the evening of Dec. 30 they would hold religious services in their play houses. Instead of charging admission they will take up a collection.

Mrs. Thompson's Advice.

OUT-OF-TOWN FRIEND IS JEALOUS

Thinks Girl Is In Company of Other Boys When He Is Not In City

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two girls in our senior class at high school. Last year we attended a dance in another city. Here we met two young men, each one a year our senior. They have been corresponding with us ever since.

One of us is not trusted by her friend.. He thinks she has dates with someone else when he hasn't the opportunity to come down and be with her. Is he jealous, and should she keep up a regular correspondence with him?

The other young man has kept up a steady correspondence with his girl until two months ago. Yesterday she received a letter from him asking her whether he might come down. Should she invite him to come. She doubts if he cares very much and therefore cannot make up her mind to let him come.

We are both considered good-looking and could have many dates in town both refuse, because we so dearly love these boys.

TWO ANXIOUS LOVERS

I think too much on love matter of the young men. Probably they enjoy your company, because you are out-of-town girls and enjoy themselves with local girls when they find it impossible to be with you. Unless they are thinking of love and marriage it is unwise for you to give up social life in your own home town.

Any girl whose friend is jealous, makes a mistake in encouraging him to feel that she has no other interest except in him. I see no reason for her to stop corresponding, but she should make it understood that only a friendly relationship exists and he must not expect her to exclude friends in her home town. I see no reason why the other young man should not be allowed to call on the 28th. He too should be regarded as a friend and not a lover, since no engagement exists.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 16 years old and a freshman in high school. I have many friends who seem to like and find me interesting. I try to go with girls who make a nice appearance and who are refined. I have no intimate friends and I go with my mother all the time. Mother is very pleasant and refined.

Should I try to find out if he cares for me? If so, how? Because of business arrangements I see him once every week for half an hour or so.

How would you handle the situation? PUZZLED.

I realize that it is often difficult for a girl to make a confident of her mother. You would feel greatly relieved however, if you confessed your love for the man to your mother and talked the matter over with her. It will do you good to express your feelings and not keep them pent up. Very often a girl of your age loves some one considerably older, but the love is not a wise thing, because the difference in age is too great for congenial interests.

Ray-O-Lites Plan For Big Holiday Party

1500 French Battery Co. Employes Will Make Merry

The French Battery & Carbon Co. will hold its annual Christmas party at the Central high school Saturday night. The party will be staged under the direction of Ben W. Park, and will constist of a Christmas program in the auditorium and dancing in the gymnasium to the music of Kruger's orchestra.

All talent on the program will be furnished by employes of the battery company, even to the orchestra which is directed by Mr Kruger. The program starts at 7:30 and will include Christmas carols as sung by the Ray-o-Lite Male Chorus. This chorus was organized recently by W. L. Miller. Community singing will be led by the chorus. J. C. Harriman, at the piano will give a demonstration of his skill. Mr. Kruger, leader of the orchestra, will give a sleight-of-hand performance. W. L. Miller will sing several solos, accompanied by Miss Frieda Sauthoff, and the Ray-o-Lite band will play. Arrangements have been made through the radio laboratories of the French Battery Co. to instal the largest radio receiving set ever built in the auditorium to hear special numbers.

Santa Claus will distribute gifts to all children and to all employes

Control Body Is Tied Up With Routine

more advanced cases, in state institutions, such care and treatment as will either restore them to productive citizens or make them comfortable so that they may be returned to their homes, and room made for others at our state institutions.

The public should be aroused to the importance of establishing a system of employment in the penal and corrective institutions of the state that will equip men and women, in all instances, so that they may, with extreme difficulty, secure a livelihood after leaving these institutions. It is unquestionably a fact that the larger number of our prisoners are made so because of their inability to secure a livelihood after leaving our penal institutions.

The public should be aroused to the importance of establishing in every county local volunteer welfare boards that will assist the county authorities in the discovery and commitment of neglected and crippled children and that will assist the board of control in all projects where the county is concerned.

The public should be aroused to the importance of establishing the most improved ways and means of giving public out-door relief. In this the state board of charities by establishing the facts concerning the amount of money given for out-door relief, and by securing the assistance of local citizens reduced the number of those who were securing such out-door relief from one in thirty to one in one hundred.

The public should be aroused to the importance of providing for the treatment of mentally ill patients by the most improved methods of psychiatry, such as the installation of hydrotherapy and occupational therapy.

The public should be aroused to the importance of establishing adequate hospitalization in institutions under the administration of the board of control. The man who pays taxes in a northern county is just as much entitled to the benefits of the most advanced care as the man who happens to reside in Milwaukee.

8. The public should be aroused to the importance of establishing adequate work and relief in behalf of the blind of the state. The county boards who have the allotment of pensions to sightless men and women are in great need of expert advice and assistance in dealing justly with such persons. To prevent pauperism and warped mentality trained care and expert assistance are absolutely indispensable to this group of persons.

9. The public should be aroused to the importance of the development of a thorough-going children's division, wherein the rights of childhood would be scrupulously conserved. This children's division should establish work of statewide proportions in behalf of dependent, defective children, and it should aid the juvenile courts by putting at the disposal of such courts every type and manner of information that could in any way assist the court in its work with all types of children. It should assist in the organization of county units and county child welfare boards; it should assist aid, and supervise all public and private child-placing agencies in the state, setting up minimum standards in such matters as commitment, adoption, and placing out of children; in visitation work, and in securing the maximum opportunity for development of the child's individual capabilities.

10. The public should be aroused to the importance of holding community, county, regional, and statewide conferences of officials from towns, cities, counties, state institutions, and state departments as well as the public at large, meeting for the purpose of exchanging experiences and securing information concerning methods, measures, and projects used by other boards and institutions in the care of incapables, delinquents, and defectives in other states.

If these problems—the care, restoration, and prevention of defectives, dependents, delinquents, and criminals—fail to be solved, the responsibility rests squarely upon the shoulders of the citizens in whose state such defectives, dependents, delinquents, and criminals exist.

The leadership for the care, restoration and prevention of social incapables lies with the board of control, but the responsibility for conditions in general, and for the problem as a whole rests with the citizenship of the state concerned.

If the board charged with this responsibility fails to solve these great problems adequately, it behooves the citizens of the state to hold it to account for its failure and until the public realizes that it is not by reducing the personnel of medical staffs at institutions; not by getting rid of capable superintendents, in order that others at a lesser wage, though manifestly of lesser capacity, might be secured; not by permitting county courts, county boards, private philanthropic, and state boards to work disjointedly in handling social incapables; not by doing away with instruction at certain institutions for crippled children; not by leaving the children's division for months without a director; not by leaving the blind without funds for months because of the failure of the board of control to appoint field agents for the blind; not by obstructing the dissemination of information, as a recent Sunday edition of a Madison paper showed the board of control had done in not using a demonstrated method of keeping blood in a testable condition for days, thereby making it possible to transmit the blood to a central state laboratory instead of transporting the sick person thus saving the state thousands of dollars; not by spending huge sums for incarcerating incapables and little or nothing for the prevention and constructive side of the work; not by the board of control tying itself up with an impossible amount of trivial details; not by the board of control closing its door to information and methods found to be beneficial in other institutions and states; and lastly not by the board of control refusing to inform the public at large as to what its program is and what it hopes to do for the dependents and defectives which cost this same public such enormous sums of money are we to solve these great human problems, but by the board of control initiating methods and measures for the doing away with causes and conditions will delinquency be checked will inadequacy be prevented, and crime stopped.

Until the board of control in whose hands rests the fortunes of persons incapable or unfit to live as normal citizens conceives its task in terms of constructive leadership with its major project, prevention, little is to be hoped for, either in reduced costs of state institutions or in the number of these deplorable creatures, victims of the frailty of their own insufficient being, or of the civilization which crushes them because it is beyond their reach.

Wisconsin Wins Many Prizes At International Stock Show

CHICAGO—Although Wisconsin is an admitted leader in the dairy industry, her winnings at the International Livestock Exposition shows that the Badgers are also able to hold their own in the beef cattle, horse, sheep and hog industries.

Wisconsin exhibitors who placed include: The University of Wisconsin which won a first in the grade and cross bred steer class. The university also won a first in the draft horse classes when Hester placed first in the aged Percheron mare class. Fourth premium in the two-year-old mare class and sixth and tenth in the yearling futurity mares class were also among the winnings of the university entries. McLay brothers of Rock county won a second in the yearling Clydesdale stallion futurity class.

The university placed a sixth prize winner in the three-year-old Belgian mare class and a fourth in the yearling futurity mare class. Harvest Farms of Dodge county won a sixth on their three-year-old Percheron mare.

In the breeding classes, Reynold brothers, Columbia county, showed among the others, second prize senior yearling heifer in a class of 25 Shorthorns. The get of Bapton Prince, Reynold's herd bull, placed sixth in a strong class of 16 exhibits. Their junior yearling heifer placed fifth in a class of 32, and their senior heifer calf placed seventh among 38. They also showed seventh prize junior heifer calf among 26, and won fourth on Bapton's Knight, senior calf bull.

Griswold brothers, Grant county, also won in the breeding Shorthorn class, taking thirteenth on Mary Clifton in the junior yearling heifer class of 32 head. Griswolds won ninth on their senior Shorthorn steer and eleventh on their senior yearling heifer in a class of 40.

J. C. Robinson, Rock county, placed several Herefords in the money at the big show. Their aged herd won seventh premium in a strong class, and in the class for two bulls bred and owned by the exhibitor, the Robinson entries placed seventh among 18. Maple's Lass 143 won third ribbon in the aged cow class. Bott brothers, Juneau county, Irving Jewell, Iowa county, and James Price, La Crosse county, were other winning Wisconsin exhibitors of Herefords.

Jewell placed seventh bull in the two-year-old class, tenth on junior yearling bull and second on their senior bull calf. Rott brothers placed a sixth prize winner in the fat Hereford steer class with their junior calf, and in the breeding class won ninth on their two-year-old heifer, and eighth on their aged cow entry.

Farceur's Pal, aged Belgian stallion owned by H. C. Harrison, Sauk county, who won reserve champion honors in the 1922 show placed third in his class, and Prince Royal, another Harrison entry, placed sixth in the same class. Mercer brothers, also of Sauk county, won a fifth on their Belgian filly foal and tenth on their yearling futurity mare.

Rock county's show herd of Milking Shorthorns won a big share of the ribbons in this division.

A. Broughton, Albany; Richards and Richards, Lodi; McKerrow, Pewaukee; the University of Wisconsin; Alice Clarke, Janesville; W. G. Miles, Evansville; Anoka farms, Waukesha county, and the Pabst Stock farms, Waukesha county, were ranked high among the sheep award winners at the exposition.

McKerrow, Pabst and Broughton were heavy winners in the breeding Shropshire classes; Richards and Richards placed many entries in the moncy in the Cotswold and Lincoln breeds, and the University of Wisconsin placed high in the fat sheep classes and in the breeding classes. Pabst's entries in the fat classes also placed high.

Miles placed second with a carload of fat lambs McKerrow showed champion ewe and ram and won several first premiums in the Oxford breed.

Roundy Says:

Coach Murray of Marquette learned enough basketball looking at that game to be fine food for his squad for this winter Meanwell had his boys do everything but leading Badger yells in this game. He could have sent a few to lead the cheering and still win the game handily.

The score don't indicate the Wisconsin strength. Even winning in easy fashion, the Wisconsin team showed lots of weakness in their playing. They have not that Meanwell zip in their passing as yet and don't seem to be too sure of each other yet and they foul an awfull lot.

When Meanwell said there are a few conference teams about 10 points advanced on Wisconsin right now, he tells the truth. The team is going better than last year at this time, but has a lot to learn yet. As Meanwell will tell you.

The team in this win sure were a sweet gang. The playing conditions were bad, the floor was slippery as a wax floor and the building so big and strange that it had the gang's goat most of the time. I have never as yet seen a Badger basketball team show the fight as this team does.

I never saw Meanwell so happy after a game in my life as this one. Doc rather won this game with this big score than most people figured Happy. I'll tell the world he was happy as a kid. I for one warned you in this column on this game. Saying Marquette would not have a chance even if Wisconsin was away off in their playing. I for one knew that Doc was going after this Marquette gang and it sure was sweet music to Doc when the game ended 27 to 7.

You should have seen Diebold, the Madison kid, go in this game. Say, folks, Tebell at his best was taking orders of Diebold in this game as to guarding. Marquette getting just seven points is a big credit to Diebold as he showed me the best guarding I ever saw.

As to Sponer they don't know what it is all about down there yet when you mention his name. He made baskets there with the whole Marquette team hanging on him. Mention Spooner's name on the Marquette campus and they have to pull their overcoat collars around their heads as it sends the shivers through them. Doc took him out of the game and Marquette gave Doc a skyrocket for having a heart.

The big floor seemed to bother Varney but he was in there all the time. And his fighting for the ball at times sure turned in to points for Wisconsin.

I never saw Barwig play so good in my life. He sure was going in there and don't look like the same man to me. Gibson in the last period finally showed his stuff in that last set. He sure acted like a basketball player should act. But in first half he was away off.

Wachman while in there got three baskets. He was running around there like Zev and tossing that leather thing in those hoops until I thought he would wear the nets out. Elsom still shows that stuff that he did in early games; he is nervous and not sure of himself. At times goes like a million dollars than in a few seconds looks like a plugged nickle.

Take my tip Marquette is going to have a basketball team this winter. They have not had the practice Wisconsin has had and are not in good shape for the grind as yet. They have some sweet team work and in Quinn have a playing ace and Fitzgerald and Dunn with Quinn before spring are going to be a great team.

The game was hard fought and a good game to watch. Marquette played a nice clean hard fought game. And had a million shots at the basket there passing at last was a joke.

Wisconsin should play Marquette every year at basketball. They packed them in here as never before and down there they had them standing out side yelling for tickets.

They say Wisconsin made more money on this game than on six conference games last year. They say Meanwell got 60 per cent of the gross which amounted to over $5,400 for the Wisconsin end.

The rent of the hall was $700 for one night. I could rent that place for about two seconds and go broke.

I never heard better yelling by two schools in my life. I thought the roof would come off. It was a pretty sight to see over 6,000 sitting there watching that game and there was plenty more outside trying to get in.

* * *

Want Central high backers to read this column on what I saw at their game with Beloit yesterday tomorrow night.

*French Battery	1	3	.250
Madison College	1	4	.200

*Game yet to be played between these two teams.

The Madison Industrial league teams swung into action Thursday night as the Madison College tumbled from their 1.000 percentage, being defeated by the strong Ray-O-Lite team in an exceptionally fast tilt the final count being 13 to 12. Throughout the game, one team would take the lead for a while, then the other five would spurt into the lead. Much interest was centered in this game as the two strongest teams in the league clashed for the first time.

With little team work and all bunched up in one heap, the French team managed to wriggle to victory. The last four minutes of play saw the French leading 11 to 10. Statz of the College team upset things a bit as he caged a field goal, making the count 12 to 11 in the 4 C's favor. Then wild and fast playing resulted and two minutes before the final whistle, the French team again attained the lead, one of the forwards sinking a field goal. The rest of the period remained scoreless.

Dodge Brothers Lose.

In the Carpenters Union-Dodge Brothers game, the auto five lost their fifth consecutive game to the Woodmen, at the Company G hall, 16 to 8. The Dodge five put up a game fight throughout and held the Carpenters 10 to 4 at the half.

The Co. G five trounced the Forward club at the Armory in the first game, the count being 11 to 2. In the baseball game held at the Y, the Post Office team defeated the Madison college whirlers 4 to 3 in a tight game of indoor baseball.

Cullop, Omaha Hurler, Purchased By Yankees

OMAHA, Neb.—Nick Cullop, star pitcher of the Omaha club of the Western league, will be delivered to the New York Yankees in the spring, H. Ries, secretary of the club said on Wednesday. The Omaha club will receive $10,000 for Cullop. Barney Burch, owner of the club, denied Tuesday night that Cullop had been sold. This was made because he did not know the agreement had been completed, Secretary Ries said.

Ebbets' $275,000 Offer For Hornsby Bonafide

CLEARWATER, Fla. — President Charles H. Ebbett president of the Brooklyn National league club, really wanted Rogers Hornsby at the record figure of $275,000, he said here on Wednesday. Ebbetts said that ordinarily he did not believe in paying high amounts for players as it tended to hurt the game, but declared his offer at the Chicago baseball meeting for the St. Louis slugger was bona fide.

East Side High Team Off for Sparta Game

The Madison East Side High basketball squad will journey to Sparta today to play that high school there. This will be the locals' second game of the season and they are doped to win the tilt.

Church Basketball League Thanks The Capital Times For Interest In Contests

THE Madison Church Basketball League, through Oscar E. Olson, secretary-treasurer, in a letter to The Capital Times today, expresses its thanks for the trophy offered to the team winning the church league championship.

The letter follows:

Madison, Wisconsin,
December 19, 1923.

Mr. Wm. T. Evjue, Editor,
Capital Times,
Madison, Wisconsin.
My dear Mr. Evjue:

I hereby wish to express the unanimous appreciation and thanks of the members of the Madison Church Basketball League for the magnificent trophy which the Capital Times has donated to the Madison Church Basketball League to be given to the championship team. We are indeed glad to know that you are interested in this league of young men. We can earnestly and frankly say that this League has a nobler purpose at stake than only to win in Basketball. Our great purpose is to interest more of the young men of our city in active church work and to bring them into church environment.

Realizing that you and men of your position are interested in this League will make its membership strive all the harder to accomplish its purpose. Within a few years we hope to make the Madison Church Athletic Association the biggest and most effective athletic association in the city. We want it to be an association that will be an asset to our city.

Very truly yours,
Madison Church Basketball League,
Oscar E. Olson,
Secy. and Treas.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR POSITIONS
Article Number 5

Have no set standards as to height, weight or build for the various positions. However, a small, fast strong man, especially if a good long shot, makes the best offensive guard. The defensive guard is most effective if tall, heavy and rugged, though he need not be especially clever with the ball. Fight, shiftiness and good judgment are the necessary requisites for him.

Control of the tip-off is worth from seven to ten points per game. Therefore, the value of jump, height and reach at center. One often sees tall, narrow chested, awkward men playing center because their height enables them to secure the tip-off, after which they are comparatively of little value in the scrimmage. This is poor policy. The center should be a good, all-around man on both offense and defense, especially good in scrimmage. The coach should never sacrifice these qualities for the sake of securing the jump.

One forward, at least, should be a fast, aggressive man, good on defense and at securing the ball in scrimmage, though he may not be a star shot. The other should be tall, so as to be of great service close to the basket for rebound work. Two "rabbit" forwards, no matter how fast, do not make the best combination.

Once the regulars are selected they should be played together as much as possible. Changing men frequently in practice hinders the development of smooth team play. Neither is frequent substitution in a game a good policy, for the injection of fresh men is usually more than offset by the demoralization of team play that results.

Adapt your game to your material. Tall, heavy men can best play a high, long-pass attack, with emphasis on a hard, smashing follow-up for rebounds. A powerful defense should be featured.

Short, light, fast players are best adapted to the short-pass, short-shot style of game, with frequent use of the pivot and underhand pass. Offense should be developed to a greater degree than defense.

It is unwise to drill school teams to play both long and short-pass styles of play. Young boys have neither the experience nor the judgment necessary to successfully alternate styles of attack, so that usually, when their offense encounters a strong defense and several styles of attack are available, they shift from one to another undecidedly in a hit-or-miss fashion and without the determined drive necessary to carry through. Employ one style and drill the players until they play it reflexly.

'Badgers Better Now Than They Were Last February,' Says Coach Barry of Iowa

"Coach Meanwell's team against Marquette looked better to me than they did against Michigan last February," is the way Sam Barry, Iowa net coach who is visiting here expressed himself yesterday when asked what he thought about the Badger quintet.

Sam was impressed with the game of the Cardinal aggregation, and especially with the playing of Dwight Spooner, forward.

"Spooner is one of the best forwards in the conference," coach Barry said.

Sam, whose home was in Madison before he entered the coaching profession is expected to remain in the city till after the holidays although this is not certain. Illness in his family necessitates his going back to Iowa City before Saturday.

According to coach Barry, there will be about 10,000 spectators on hand at Iowa City when the Badgers play there, especially if both teams are on top at that time.

Ray-O-Lites Meet Pilgrim Next Saturday

Church and Industrial League Teams Lock Horns

The Pilgrims net team will lock horns with the flashy Ray-O-Lite five at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday night Dec. 29th. The Pilgrims is one of the strongest teams in the Church League while the Ray-O-Lites is considered the strongest in the Industrial League.

Rivalry Is Keen

There is considerable rivalry between the teams of the two Leagues and the interest among Basketball fans is tense to see how different teams from each League stack up against each other. The Industrial League has been organized much longer than the Church League and the teams of this league are also considered to be of a higher caliber than the ones in the Church League. The Ray-O-Lite team is especially a team of high caliber, consisting mostly of star players.

Pilgrims Fast Team

The Pilgrims, although not considered nearly as strong as the Ray-O-Lites have shown some real basketball in the Church League. Great interest has been shown in this team because it is a team picked from the smallest Church in Madison. Even though the Ray-O-Lites are much the favorites it is expected that the Pilgrims will give them a real battle.

Northwestern Quint Loses to Notre Dame

WEDNESDAY'S RESULTS
Notre Dame, 25; Northwestern U., 15.
Harvard, 39; Middleburg, 17.
Navy, 49; Manhattan college, 25.
Army, 17; Connecticut Aggies, 15.
Sparks, 24; Illinois Normal, 20.
Wisconsin, 27; Marquette, 7.

NOTRE DAME, Ind.—The Notre Dame basketball five won its final game of the pre-holiday schedule here last night, disposing of the fast Northwestern quintet, 25 to 15. Notre Dame proved superior to the Purple at the very outset of the game and the score at half time was 12 to 7. The locals came back strong in the final period and ran up thirteen points. Reardon and Kiser starred for the home team, while Capt. Stegman was the mainstay of the visiting aggregation.

Conference Tank Mark Tied By Iowa Plunger

IOWA CITY—Morse B. Lake, freshman star from Shenandoah, Iowa tied the conference record in the plunge for distance last week when he plunged sixty feet in :17 8-10. This mark lowered the university record by :02 4-10 and was made during the university championship meet. Hickox, former holder of the university record placed second to Lake.

Former Champ Ten Pin Artist Goes Good In Games

BY BRYN GRIFFITHS

Jimmy Smith, former world's champion bowler, and one of the best known veteran ten pin artists in the country defeated Herb Lange 986 to 957 in a five game match at the Capitol Alleys last night, but took the short end of the score in the doubles. In the doubles, Smith and Jess Neighbors were defeated by Tony Schwoegler and Herb Lange, 1229 to 1076.

In his five game match with Lange, Smith lost but one game. Lange took the second 225 to 193. The third and fourth games were tied, but the fifth went to Smith 190 to 179.

The results of the games follows:

H. Lange	167	225	193	183	179	947
J. Smith	227	193	193	183	190	986
J. Neighbors			182	169	181	532

REPORT OF THE MARKETS

Report for December 21, 1923

Wheat Drops As Deliveries Are Enlarged

CHICAGO—Enlarged deliveries here on December contracts led to general selling and to lower prices for wheat today during the early dealings. The deliveries this morning totalled 358,000 bushels, the most liberal amount yet. Most commission houses appeared to be dubious about prospects of any business developing from the German food situation.

Opening prices, which varied from unchanged figures to ½@⅝c lower, May 1.05⅞ to 1.08 and July 1.06 to 1.05⅛, were followed by a general setback that exceeded a cent a bushel in some cases.

Subsequently further declines took place, weakness of values at Minneapolis, together with attention given here to the great extent of duty paid imports of wheat and flour into the United States from Canada this season told against the bulls. Closing quotations were heavy ½ to 1⅝@1¾ net lower, May 1.06½ to 1.06⅝ and July 1.05 to 1.05⅛.

CORN—Corn and oats dropped with wheat. After opening ⅛ to ⅞ down, May 73⅛ to 73⅜, the corn market continued to sag.

Unfavorable weather and prospective delay to the crop movement, failed to uphold values. The close was weak at ¾ to 1¼ cent net decline. May 72⅝@¾ to 72¾.

OATS—Oats started unchanged to ¼c up, May 45⅛ to 45¼, but later showed losses all around.

PROVISIONS — Proviisons lacked support.

Stock Market Is Irregular; Trend Higher

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stock prices fluctuated within a narrow and irregular area at the opening of today's stock market with the main movement still upward. There were a few outstanding strong spots such as General Asphalt, Schulte and Beechnut, all of which advanced a point or more. Oils showed the greatest initial activity.

Further irregularity developed as trading progressed but the gains continued to outnumber the losses. Gains of 1 to 2¼ points were registered by General Asphalt, Atlantic Refining, Austin Nichols, Cuba Cane Sugar Pfd., Wilson Packing Schulte, Tobacco Products, American Radiator and several others, including Computing, Tabulating and Recording which touched a new 1923 top. Some of the weak spots were National Lead, American Can Jones Brothers Tea, Willys Overland Pfd., Davison Chemical and Omaha Pfd., the last named falling 3½ to a new low. Foreign exchanges opened lower.

The closing was irregular. Strength of the department stores, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe and General Asphalt issues was counteracted in the final dealings by the intermittent heaviness of Dupont, Davison Chemical and Corn Products. Sales approximated 750,000 shares.

Address

Rev. Frank Williams Lynch. The photo is a reproduction of one of his calling cards.

That the Rev. Frank Williams Lynch, Wichita, Kan., minister, university graduate and author and composer of "My Mother's Prayers Are Answered," is a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, is the charge made by his wife. Now ill in bed in her Wichita home, Mrs. Catherine Lynch says that he not only wrecked her life but those of three other women. Lynch, held in the Dallas, Tex., jail with a member of his choir, must face trial in Oklahoma for bigamy and in Kansas for child desertion. He denies all the charges.

Won't Close School

Fund Shortage Not Critical, Kittle Says; Regents To Meet In January

There is no immediate danger of the state university and normal schools being required to close because of the controversy over emergency funds following the action of the state emergency board Thursday, university and normal regent officials declared, Friday.

William Kittle, secretary of the normal regents, stated that the normals would be able to operate until June 1 under available funds. It was said by university officials that available funds will enable the university to continue in operation for several months.

The emergency board did not pass on any items under the heading of operation funds, which includes salaries, and general expenses. Atty. Gen. Ekern stated that suit to compel the secretary of state to certify the funds must be filed by the university or normal regents. Neither board of regents is scheduled to meet until the middle of January. Whether or not special meetings will be called could not be ascertained.

Cottages Entered

Evidences Of "Parties" Found At Two Bungalows At Second Ward Beach

Three cottages at the second ward beach, near Westport, on Lake Mendota, have been entered within the last few weeks and cottage fixtures have been stolen, according to James Lewis, cashier at the Capital City bank, and owner of one of the cottages. Evidence that "parties" have been staged in the cottages without the okners' consent has been found, according to Mr. Lewis. Efforts to prevent further pilfering will be taken by owners.

STOUGHTON. — The Odd Fellows and Robekahs have a Christmas tree for the young people this evening at the Odd Fellows hall, along with a program. Committees from the two lodges have charge of the doings. There was a similar event last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Lesley Miller of Battle Creek, Michigan, are visitors in these parts. Mrs. Miller with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nels Vingom, Seventh street, Mr. Miller with his parents in Evansville. He will arrive at Stoughton for Christmas.

Mrs. Nettie Barzantee came down from Madison yesterday to attend the meeting of Circle 4 of the First Congregational church at the home of her sister, Mrs. F. E. Page, North Page street.

Mrs. George F. Bennett of Madison, has been visiting friends at Stoughton.

Home For The Aged

There will be Christmas exercises at the Home for the Aged on Christmas eve with a program.

Ole Egdal, 79, died yesterday at the Home for the Aged, where he had been a resident for the past 8 years. The funeral will be held on Saturday morning, service conducted by Rev. B. J. Larson. Interment at the Home cemetery. He had no surviving relatives.

About forty friends gave a surprise party Wednesday night to Mr. and Mrs. William Stokke, on what is better known as the William Seamonsbn farm in Pleasant Springs.

William Johnson arrived home this week from Canton, South Dakota, for a holiday visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Johnson, North Monroe st. He is head of the high school at Canton.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Limpke of Chicago are Christmas guests of Rev. and Mrs. R. M. Jones at the First Methodist parsonage.

The Sunny Side school, near Utica closes Friday. This week the 8th grade pupils of that school, visited the Home for The Aged and heard lectures on the dairy subject and inspected the Holstein registered herd. Miss Olleta Otteson is teacher.

There was a Christmas tree and end exercises in the Rutland Center school last evening.

Mrs. F. A. Montague is spending a few days in Madison with her daughter, Mrs. Wallace Bowman, who is ill.

The rainy spell during Wednesday night brought leaf tobacco into "case" to some extent but not as much as desired. The outer tiers of the tobacco barns softened, so that the weed could be handled and piled, but there is still a great amount left to be removed from the pole. Farmers take advantage of every opportunity to get bundling done, so as to have it out of the way of springs work. There will be millions of dollars paid for the 1923 Wisconsin product this year.

Mrs. Andrew Johnson and son Arthur, South Academy st., went to Janesville yesterday for a weekend visit with ... and Mrs. John Conley.

The Home Paper scores The Capital Times correspondent for telling of the C. A. Brooks "surprise" in advance, which he much regrets if it was so intended. A prominent Rebekah solicited for the evnt and said nothing about any surprise. Whether surprise or not Mr. and Mrs. Brook feel grateful for the esteem in which they are held.

Berdie Erdahl of Pleasant Springs and Miss Beatrice Knight were married in Rockford yesterday. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Knight of Stoughton.

Funeral of Even Evenson

Pallbearers at the funeral of Even Evenson were Anfin Moen, H. O. Hougen, Bernie Jenson, Even Espelie, H. A. Hulsether, Ole Hellickson. Service was conducted by Rev. R. M. Fjelstad and Rev. G. G. Krostu at the home and by Rev. Mr. Krostu at the West Koshkonong church in Pleasant Springs.

Benny Monson of Presho, S. D., is a visitor with relatives at Stoughton and Utica.

J. M. Voagen left yesterday for Sturgeon Bay to remain over Christmas with relatives.

Regular meeting of W. R. C. Tuesday evening at 7:30. The regular work will be followed by a Christmas party and a picnic lunch. Each member is requested to bring a little gift.

Christ Lutheran church: Morning worship in the English language at 10:30. Special music. The pastor will speak on "The Right Christmas Spirit." Sunday school at 9:15. Luther League at 7. Theodora Holtan, leader; Topic: "Advent Messages from Bethlehem"; Hilleborg Christenson: "The Advent of Jesus Fortold In the Old Testament" by John Bjoin; "Sidelights' by Herman Johnson; Piano solo, Lucile Peterson; Talk by Idore Stubkjar.

Christmas Day festival service at 10:30. Both languages used. Special songs by choir, Lutheran Brotherhood Glee Club and Idore Stubkjar. Sermon subject: "God's Greatest Gift To Men." The Christmas Cantata, "The Story of Bethlehem" by William R. Spence will be given by the choir and assisting soloists at 7:45. A free-will offering will be taken at the door. Christmas tree program by the Sunday school on Wednesday evening at 7:30. R. M. Felstad, Pastor.

A. H. Sime is ill at his home on North Page St.

Peter Olson and family are spending some weeks with relatives at West Salem, Wis.

Nels Teigen and Matt Ellingbo went to Madison yesterday, where they visited Even Gunderson, patient at the Methodist hospital.

Mrs. Ray G. Patterson went to Madison yesterday for a visit with her sister, Mrs. James R. Law and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Al. Schroede removed from their former home to a new modern cottage on South Page St. yesterday, where they will hereafter be located. Their big residence on West Main St. is vacant for the present.

The High School.

The Movie, although not largely attended, due to a bad rainy night, nevertheless it was a good performance.

The general high schol program was held Friday afternoon. The chief form of entertainment was a sketch from Dicken's Christmas Carol, put on by Miss Pagel's English classes.

The junior high school home economic cooking classes held a sale of Christmas candies, on Thursday.

Grade programs at the east side and the fifth and sixth grades of the Central were held Thursday.

The Round Table held their meeting and gave a Christmas party Wednesday night, Dec. 19. A chicken dinner was served. All the girls exchanged gifts and the verses, which accompanied them afforded a great deal of fun. The class presented Miss Mitchell with a beautiful ivory brush.

The T. T. O. Girls completed their art course by making their own Christmas gifts. The girls have done some very commendable work.

Several little girls from the East Side school and two from the South side entertained the high school by singing several songs. Those who took part are: Ruth Ann Hoel, Nora Smestad, Marian Hippenmeyer, Borghild Nelson, Thelma Savig, Hazel Christopherson and Inga Grondahl, also Marion Kiel and Dorothy Hallum.

Vacation from Dec. 21 to Jan. 7.

Coach Solbraa will take the basketball team to Evansville Friday evening. Evansville defeated Janesville, the score being 19 to 18. The schedule for the coming games are as follows: Dec. 21, at Evansville; Jan. 11, at Janesville; Jan. 15, Madison, here; Jan. 18, University high; Jan. 25, Evansville, here; Jan. 30, University high, here; Feb. 1, at Ft. Contest Will Left By Mazomanie Woman

The state of Wisconsin has filed protest with the Dane county court against the will left by Mrs. Mary Ann Wilson, Mazomanie, who died Oct. 1. The state asks that the estate of $6,200 left by Mrs. Wilson to John M. Orcutt, be turned over to the state because it is alleged "undue influence" was exerted on Mrs. Wilson is making the document. Thomas H. Wilson, a step-son, and the only relative, was not benefited in the will.

THEY FOUND THE WOMEN, AND THE DEATH-DEALERS

Stephen Donoghue (at top) and Thomas Martin.

Detectives! Would you believe it? Not a thing like Sherlock Holmes or Craig Kennedy or Pinkerton or Burns or Izzy Einstein. Yet they caught the man responsible for the Brooklyn bank robbery and murder, one of the biggest Gotham police cases in years. They found the women. Pouf! The rest was easy.

I have the following mortgages for sale which are first liens upon new homes in the city of Madison. These mortgages draw a very good rate of interest and the interest is payable twice a year. The properties are insured for both Fire and Tornado Insurance. The loans are on all new income producing properties. The reason why these loans draw a little higher rate of interest than ordinary is because the home owner is satisfied to pay a little larger rate to the people that furnish the necessary sums of money so they can pay for their homes. The home owner is saving at least 7% because the rents which they have been paying have amounted to from about 10 to 15%. Now if you are interested in any of the following loans, kindly take the matter up with me and I will show you the property and also give you the full information regarding same.

4—$2,000.00 mortgages due three years after date.
4—$2,500.00 mortgages due three years after date.
2—$3,000.00 mortgages due three years after date.
1—$3,500.00 mortgage due three years after date.
2—$4,000.00 mortgages due three years after date.

I have invested my own funds in these loans and desire at this time to dispose of these mortgages.

Dangerous Precedent Has Been Established

A DANGEROUS precedent,—a precedent that may plague the progressives considerably in the future, was laid down yesterday when Gov. Blaine and State Treasurer Levitan, as members of the emergency board, voted to appropriate $155,000 of state funds to the university and the normal schools. Fred R. Zimmerman, secretary of state, the other member of the board, voted against the proposal.

The action was taken following the failure of the legislature to pass educational appropriation bills at the last session.

THE constitution of the state of Wisconsin specifically and without qualification provides that the legislature shall have the sole power to appropriate money. This power cannot be delegated. Gov. Blaine accurately stated the objection to the emergency board in his message to the legislature on March 3, 1921 when he said:

The constitution provides that no money shall be paid out of the public treasury, unless there is an appropriation therefor, and the only qualified authority in Wisconsin to make appropriations is the legislative department. If the legislative department has not made sufficient appropriations the responsibility rests with it and no public official has any right to assume that responsibility and create a condition which may imply an obligation upon the legislature to make an additional appropriation. A public official who creates a condition that brings about a deficiency in his department has usurped powers, and brings himself within the prohibition of the statutes.

THE present emergency law was enacted during the Philipp regime as a war measure. Competent authorities have held from the day of its passage that the law is unconstitutional. The law should have been repealed by the progressives.

When the law was passed, it was bitterly attacked by the progressives as a usurpation by three state officials of the legislative right to appropriate money. If three men can appropriate the state's money why have a legislature was the argument. For progressives now to do the very thing that was criticised in the Philipp regime is strange procedure, indeed.

THE viciousness of the emergency board law is illustrated by what has happened recently. The officials of the university had the audacity to come before the board and ask for appropriations of nearly $700,000 as emergency appropriations. Included in this amount was a request of over $300,000 for new buildings and grounds. Even during the Philipp regime it was never suggested that the emergency board appropriations should be for any other purpose than purely emergency operation expenses. Now the emergency act is being stretched to cover capital account purposes. The university, later, very properly withdrew its request for the $300,000 for new buildings.

Suppose that the emergency board was dominated by men ready to grant the request of the university for $300,000 for buildings as an emergency appropriation? That would mean that university buildings could be erected without the O. K. of the legislature. Is that a principle which the people of Wisconsin want to adopt?

THE CAPITAL TIMES has always contended that the principle of the emergency board law is wrong. The progressives have now been placed in the position of doing the very thing which, under another regime, they held to be wrong. There is no situation at the present time that warrants the action that has just been taken. We have not been shown that any serious emergency exists in either the university or the normal schools. The effort to argue that a special session of the legislature would be necessary unless the emergency board acted is not proven.

Mr. Zimmerman has rendered a service to the state in the position that he has taken on the emergency board question. In refusing to be a party to legislative usurpation, he has been on solid ground. He has taken the ground that a true progressive should take. In addition, Mr. Zimmerman has undoubtedly saved the state considerable money. The emergency board action has been stalled from week to week because of Mr. Zimmerman's refusal to O. K. appropriations. The appropriations have been pared considerably from earlier meetings.

The progressives should pledge themselves in the coming campaign to repeal this vicious law at the next session of the legislature. The principle back of the emergency law should not be permitted to gain any foothold in a democratic commonwealth.

(From Superior Telegram)

Seven million hungry children appeal to America for help.

Yes, they are German children and the war left certain scars upon our memory not easy to forget.

Yet they are children and in their wasted under-nourished bodies tuberculosis now sows the seeds of its dread harvest.

They are not to blame for their fathers' mistakes and sins. They are only children suffering the aftermath of the war.

So America, the quality of whose mercy is not strained, sets out to raise twenty million dollars to buy them food. It is a good way to translate Christianity into action this Christmas-tide.

Will you help?

There can be no question of dire need. Major General Allen, former commander of our Army of Occupation on the Rhine under whose direction the campaign for relief for German children is being conducted, says that unless relief comes soon many will perish as the victims of tuberculosis. Senator La Follette, recently returned from Germany, says the need is acute President Coolidge expresses himself as heartily in favor of sending help. Senator Lenroot believes the need so great that he introduces bill in congress to appropriate twenty-five million dollars for relief. Congressman Peavy sent a check for $25 to start The Telegram fund. Last week Governor Blaine called upon the churches to help.

Every cent contributed to this fund will be spent for food stuffs in this country. Then this food will be shipped free of charge to Germany where its distribution will be under the direction of American Quakers who are working there. This you are assured that every cent you give goes to the help of these ?starving German children.

Will you help?

Voice of the People

THE CAMPAIGN FOR HEALTH

[To The Editor]—In wishing a Merry Christmas to one so interested in promoting the well-being of the people of this state, the members of this society have entered in your name a year subscription to "Hygeia," a journal of individual and community health.

This journal, published for the layman, is truly representative of the aim of scientific medicine to prevent disease. That disease can be prevented is strikingly shown in our own state when we compare the death rate of 108 per hundred thousand in 1908 with 67 in 1922, a reduction of 37 per cent. In 1908 the work of lay education was begun and that work has saved 18,000 lives in Wisconsin in 15 years.

The prevention of disease cannot be accomplished solely by physicians. It is a work that needs the sympathetic support of leaders in all walks of public life. It is with their aid and your aid, as one of them, that Wisconsin can be made the healthiest state in the union. "Hygeia" will bring to you information to which you are entitled and in which we believe you will be interested.—J. G. Crownhart, Executive secretary, State Medical Society of Wisconsin.

When Jacques Cartier came to the well-known Atlantic coast in 1534 and claimed it all for the king of France, he included in his big real estate deed untold millions of gannets that roosted on a thousand rocky islands from southern New England to Labrador. Their looks, especially their beautiful wings which looked too lovely for anything on ladies' hats, were not the fortune of the gannet.

Looking Backward

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Hon. P. Doyle, dressed his Ambrosial locks before a Park hotel mirror today.

One of Madison's citizens, who wouldn't stop drinking, was brought before the police court this morning to render up an account of his ungentlemanly and inebriate conduct. The Judge sentenced him to 30 days in the county jail, but the prisoner seemed so sorely repentant that His Honor granted him an opportunity to reform, and informed him that his sentence would not be enforced as long as he behaved himself.

The swearing which the number of railroad schedule changes has caused of late, would be appalling if considered in one compact swear. If time tables ever settle down to anything to a state of euilibrium, and the railroads decide to run their trains on anything like an accommodating plan, there will be joy in Israel.

Mark Irish, the justly popular landlord of the Park hotel is going to tender another dance for his employees.

Just enough snow fell last night to make poor heeling and still poorer sleighing.

Tip o' the Tongue

ANOTHER evil that will have to be abated before accidents will decrease is the jury evil. With the present jury we cannot get the convictions that are necessary, because their good judgment is hampered by such legal terms as a "reasonable doubt." They always seem to find a "reasonable doubt" even as in a recent case when the defendant first offered to plead guilty. The reason for this is that every representative business and profissional man who receives a jury summons always has some "friend at court" who gets the judge to excuse him.

—CIRCUIT JUDGE VICTOR FALKENHAINER, St. Louis.

I THANK GOD there is one community that has the courage to tell the truth about war and depict it as Hell. That is the way war should be depicted—fierce and hideous and repulsive—not a glorious thing, the pride of youth and the ambition of nations. Too long has the youth of nations been led by false images and untruthful art to consider war sublime. They have not been shown the infamy of war. Manchester, I congratulate you. I hope your example will be heeded country-wide, and throughout the world.

—REV. A. Z. CONRAD, on the Manchester (Mass.) Memorial, which depicts war without a halo.

Tell of German Need

Appleton Post-Crescent Outlines the Suffering Now Existing in Central Europe.

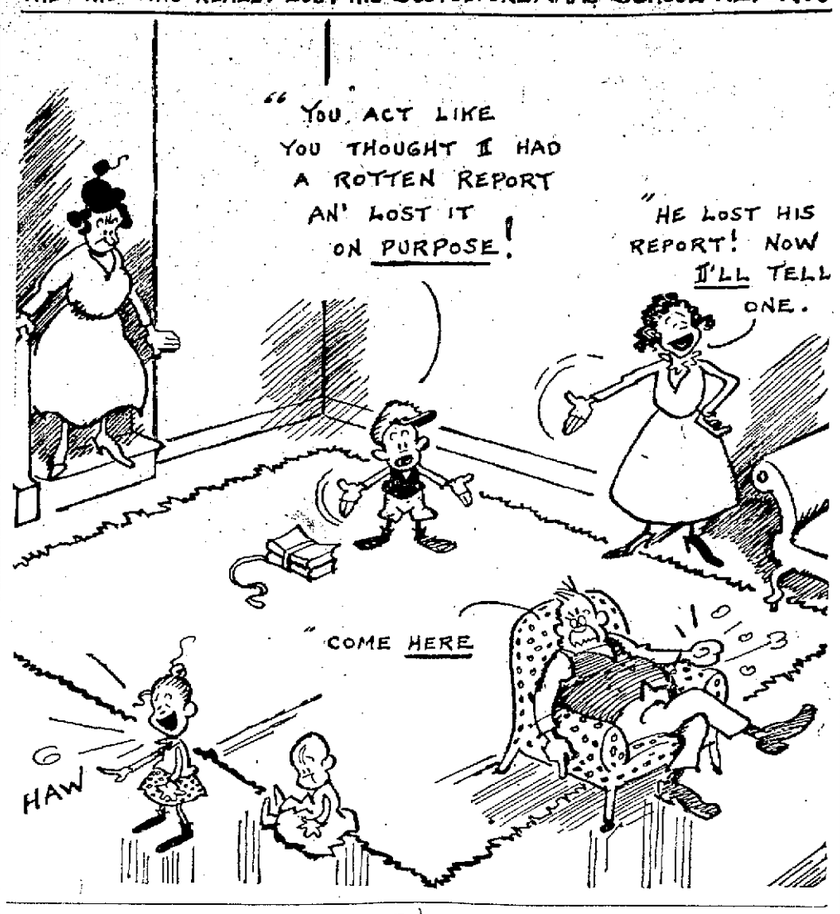

[From Appleton Post-Crescent]

According to Major General T. Allen, chairman of the American Committee for Relief of German Children, 7,000,000 German children are in immediate danger of starvation or of contracting tuberculosis as a result of prolonged under-nourishment. Some of the conditions he describes should strike home to the American people, whose peace and plenty are about to expand themselves in generous Christmas giving. He says most of the German children referred to above do not get any warm meals or any bread at all. Most of the towns obtain only one-tenth of the milk they received in peace time, so that the babies and small children are deprived of this necessary article of dict. Instead, they get coffee and saccharine.

Although the birth rate declined in Berlin by 30 per cent, the infant mortality during the last three months was 21 per cent higher than last year. He says half the newly born children have been transferred to orphan asylums because the parents cannot provide for them. Approximately three million people are without underclothing and shoes, while babies are without clothes and in many instances bed clothing is entirely missing. Meat consumption, excluding imports, was 123 pounds per capita in 1912, 84 pounds in 1922 and the estimate for the first six months of 1923 is only 34 pounds. Thirty-five per cent of the entire German population, including men, women and children, are being supported out of public funds. Five million people are without work and an additional one and a half million are working short time.

These conditions must touch a responsive chord of American sympathy. They should appeal to us with the greatest force. The desperate plight of the German people, whose kin and descendants are so largely represented in our racial make-up, is a humanitarian appeal that should go to the very heart of this nation. We have, as a matter of fact, already given liberally to Germany, but we must give still more. We are the only nation in the world which can adequately provide relief to its stricken people. Drives throughout the country for funds for this purpose are meeting with commendable success. Every community should have a share in this work and should do its part toward saving the babies and children of Germany from starvation and misery the coming winter.

THE CHRISTMAS BOOTLEGGER

I am a smuggler, a pirate perhaps, or a bootlegger cunning and bold.
I work in the dark in the slyest of ways, when there's never an eye to behold.
I sneak with my treasures through alleys, that none may see me at night when I come,
For I'm a bootlegger, this time of the year—bootlegging a little boy's drum.

Yes, I'm a bootlegger. My pockets are deep and I carry the strangest of wares,
And I hide what I get in the darkest of nooks—I've my plunder stored under the stairs,
And down in the cellar I've hidden away full many a package of cheer,
For I'm bootlegging engines and footballs and skates and wagons this time of the year.

I must hide from the light, for bright eyes are alert to detect any strangeness in me,
And I know I'm suspected by one little boy who is sharp as a small boy can be;
For the joy of the Christmas is bootlegging toys and hiding them under the bed,
So watch me tonight as I journey towards home, bootlegging a little boy's sled.

MARRIES AT 120

What to do with the "Grand Old Man" of Zubeir was a problem that confronted the new Arab regime in Mesopotamia when it displaced the rule of the Turks. The "Grand Old Man," one Abu Seraith by name, who owns to the age of 120 years, finally solved that question himself by taking a young Mesopotamian damsel to wife. He now has a post under the minister of Awgaf, but is more or less a pensioner in spite of his physical vitality—he thinks nothing of walking a dozen or more miles a day to Basrah. For the past 20 years his diet has consisted solely of bread, dates and milk.

TOOTS and CASPER - - - by MURPHY

TICKS O' THE TIMES

A LITTLE SLICE O' LIFE

I went to five haberdasheries
Along the main street of this town
Looking for a No. 17 shirt.
All five turned me down, flat.
They didn't care for my custom
Unless I had a No. 15 neck.
This was a surprise to me,
Because I have worn No. 17 shirts
For the past twenty years.
But it seems now as though
A man who wears more than a No. 15
Is not entitled to shirts, at all.
The willowy boys have the call.
I went to see the sixth dealer.
He seemed disposed to talk to me,
But he had no shirts of the No. 17.
I asked him why he didn't keep them
And what a man has to do who had
Better than a pipestem for a neck,
And he said frankly he didn't know.
"But," he continued, "I think
That perhaps I can help you
In the solution of your difficulty.
I will send for some literature
On the subject and will mail it
To your address in a day or two.
It will solve the shirt trouble."
Well, this morning it came.
It was in the shape of a pamphlet,
And the title of it was:
"Why be Fat? We Can Reduce You
One Pound a Day Without Fail."
And that is the only way anybody
Has ever tried to solve
The shirt problem for me.

The Rev. Mr. Potter was ruthlessly critical. He cited cud-chewing of hares; the astronomical impossibility of Joshua's sun-stopping feat; the contradiction between one passage that credits a daughter of Saul with five sons and anothers that records her childless.

Then he quoted the passage "God said thou shalt not suffer a witch to live," and blamed it for the death of thousands of women in mediaeval days. That is a morally degrading thing to attribute to God, he said, as is the biblical injunction for the stoning to death of disobedient children.

The Rev. Mr. Stratton advanced the miraculous fulfillment of prophecy from the destruction of Ninevah and Tyre to the foreshadowed birth of Jesus.

"Men have clung to this book because they found it the very bread and water of life," he declared. "To deny its infallibility is to deny the existence of a living God."

Manning Urges Church Truce In Holiday Period

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Bishop William T. Manning forwarded on Thursday a letter to the rectors of all churches in the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New York, asking that a truce be observed in the religious controversy between the conservatives and modernists until after the Christmas season.

The letter was accompanied by individual memoranda to the rectors, requesting them to read the diocesan communication at the services next Sunday morning.

"Serious questions," the letter declared, "are before the church at this time. But no one, however, should be unduly perturbed. We have our Lord's promise that the church shall be guided by the Holy Spirit, and to the full truths of Jesus Christ this church has always steadfastly borne witness. The position of the church has not changed. No new statement of doctrine has been made by the house of bishops."

Gun Boat Rule Perils China, Claim

Sun Yat Sen Appeals to British Labor Leader to Protest

(By the Associated Press)

HONG KONG—Dr. Sun Yat Sen head of the Canton government, today telegraphed to Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the British labor party, asking him to "bring to the notice of the British people, and particularly the workers, the grave situation which the British representatives in China mainly have been instrumental in creating at Canton."

"My government is being threatened with acts of war by an international force of nearly a score of gunboats armed with soldiers, who have already landed at Shameen. (The foreign section of Canton, where the administration offices of other nations are located.)

"This is the work of the diplomatic body at Peking, done at the instance of the British minister on advice of the senior consul at Canton who is the British consul general, and the inspector general of Chinese maritime customs, who is a British national."

Sun reminds the British labor leader that China, one of the richest markets for British goods, cannot be secured by a gunboat policy although it can be won by a policy aiming at the capture of Chinese good will.

Believe Watertown Girl Held By Kidnapper

WATERTOWN, Wis.— A search throughout Dodge and Jefferson counties is under way for Aurelia Neis, 13 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Neis of this city, who disappeared from her home here a week ago. Following a thorough search by members of her family the aid of police was enlisted and practically every officer and department in this section has been notified of the girl's disappearance. The parents are grief stricken and are unable to account for her leaving home. Miss Neis was a student in one of the public schools here and failed to return after classes. No one has been able to give any information concerning her whereabouts and it is thought that possibly she accompanied an older person and is being held against her will.

Wales May Renounce Throne; Groom Duke of Yor

The Duke of York, his wife, Elizabeth, and (insert) the Prince of Wales.

LONDON — His refusal to wed and his bourgeois tastes have brought the stern censure of King George upon the Prince of Wales and the renuciation of the throne by the Prince may be expected at any time, it is being persistently said here. Further, the Royal family is prepared for the announcement, and the Duke of York and his wife, Elizabeth, are being groomed to succeed George and Mary on the throne.

It is no secret that the Prince is "in bad" with his regal father. There are constant quarrels, and the relations of the Prince with his mother are not much better, it is stated authoritively. The parents' favorite is the Duke of York; he is the good boy of the family.

When the King summoned the Prince to Buckingham Palace and lectured him severely the Prince is said to have retorted:

" 'I have no intention of becoming King, but if I have got to be King, I will be a real one.' "

The Prince is not without his partisans in the royal circle. He is the favorite of his grandmother, the Dowager Queen Alexandria he is looked up to by his youngest brothers, and his sister, the Princess Mary, before she married the Viscount Lascelles and left the immediate family circle, was able to prescrve a resemblance of peace in the family through her affection for the Prince and her father alike.

The hereditary conflict of the blood of his worldly grandfather, Edward VII, and of Albert, the conventional consort of Victoria, which flows in his veins, is not forgotten by those who regret the break between the Prince of Wales and the King. A few years ago Wales was the most popular man in the empire. He was counted as a man who would add strength to the throne of Great Britain.

After his return from India it was reported the Prince would renounce the throne, owing to poor health. Denial followed, but it is now remarked the denial was only that he would not renounce the throne on account of ill health.

Time after time the Queen has arranged the preliminarics of a good match for him, or what she considers a suitable one, only for her plans to be wrecked by him at the last moment. The last occasion was when Lady Rachel Cavendish, daughter of the Duchers of Devonshire, was proposed to the Prince.

He again showed that he would not hear of it, asd the young lady promptly showed her own views by making a love match with a handsome young Scottish aristocrat.

This was a bitter blow for the Queen. With these differences the whole family circle is divided, ranging themselves on the side of the King or on that of the Prince. The "respectability" party have now set their hearts on the Duke of York; they were enchanted with the marriage of this "good boy" of the family to the charming Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, and hope that one day he will be King of England.

Evacuation of Capital Is Expected

Loyalists Claim Victory

Counter-Report Declares Revolutionists Driven Toward Vera Cruz

(By the Associated Press)

JUAREZ, Mex.—Developments in the revolutionary situation beyond the claims of opopsing factions as to victories in recent operations, were lacking in Juarez early today.

Four towns have been captured by the rebels under Gen. Guadalupo Sanchez, representatives of the De La Huerta faction announced at Nogales, Arizona. The anchstas are within sixty kilometers of Mexico City, which the Obregon forces are preparing to evacuate, the announcement said.

Many dead and wounded were left on the field near Apizaco, according to the revolutionary statement, which reported that 3,000 prisoners were taken there after a clash yesterday following which the government troops were retreating.

On the other hand Consul General Ruiz here said the rebels are being driven toward Vera Cruz and are tearing up the rails behind them to hinder pursuit. The revolting troops have been forced to evacuate Tehuacan. Gen. Fimenta of the rebels been killed in an engagement with the federals, dispatchs stated.

Yeggs, Driven Off, Leave Their Explosive in Safe

SIOUX CITY, Ia.—Yeggs who attempted to rob the postoffice at Perkins, Ia., 50 miles north of Sioux City, had the safe all charged with nitro glycerine and ready to shoot when they were driven away by Postmaster Roekel, who discovered them. The fuse had been removed, but the soup still remains in the safe, which will not be molested until explosive experts arrive on the scene.

"Ironed" Out Her Troubles; Call Out Riot Squad

Helen White, West Side resident, had a system of "ironing out" her troubles. So when Thursday night she encountered difficulties with a certain male acquaintance in "Little Italy", Helen is alleged by police to have drawn a "shooting iron". Luckily no casualties resulted. Patrolman Michael Griffin, on duty in that district, received orders from headquarters for her arrest. When he espied her promenading along the 700 block on W. Washington ave., a bit of song on her lips, he called the patrol wagon and took her to the station. On her person police claim to have found a large framed revolver, two shells of which had been recently discharged. Helen received accommodations for the night in the women's department. She pleaded not guilty to a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

Before any such program is possible, however, in Wisconsin an aroused public opinion must demand one of two things. First, that the present Board of Control must face about and work out in Wisconsin some of the tried and proved methods which have yielded such astounding large returns in the checking and preventing of incapables in other states; or second, the people must demand that a system similar to the State Board of Health or Industrial Commission be put in the place of the present Board of Control.

There must be created throughout Wisconsin an informed and aroused public consciousness in connection with all things having to do with incapables, defectives, and criminals.

First, the people must be given the facts as to the number of inadequates in the state of Wisconsin that exist both as inmates of the state institutions and in the state at large.

In the second place the people must be acquainted with the amount of money necessary for their maintenance. They must also be made to realize what part of such money goes simply to incarcerating these unfortunates, and what part goes to the prevention and restoration of such unfortunates.

In the third place the causes and conditions for these unfortunates must be laid bare before all citizens.

And in the fourth place there must be aroused a demand for measures that will strike at causes and conditions: that will at least attempt to check, at its source, all pauperism and crime. Anything less is inhuman and race suicide.

To this end interested citizens, clubs, and organizations, existing for the common weel, owe it to the state to carry on, and to see that the Board of Control carries on, a program of public education that will inform and arouse every taxpayers concerning the ever-increasing number of persons dependent upon the state for their maintenance, and also concerning the measures that will if carried out over a period of years, reduce this umber of unfortunates and reduce the burden of taxation necessary for their care.

1. The public should be aroused to an appreciation of the importance of establishing a statewide system of parole and probation for the discovery of incipient delinquents, and this restoration of juvenile delinquents to a normal life by kindness and trained care, who, without some such care, soon develop into hardened criminals.

2. The public should be aroused to the importance of establishing adequate means of discovering mental defectives in the state at large, and in providing either at their homes, in the schools, or in the

'Homicide By Telephone' May Be Unique Charge Raised In Fond du Lac Woman's Suicide

FOND DU LAC—A suicide with many of the elements of a "homicide by telephone" was enacted at Fond du Lac on Thursday.

The victim was Mrs. Hazel Harrington Burns, who ended her life immediately after receiving an anonymous death threat over the wire, and twenty hours after she had testified before the federal grand jury in Milwaukee concerning the Campbellsport postoffice robbery. Hanging up the receiver, Mrs. Burns walked into an adoining room and swallowed a mixture of strychnine sulphate and carbolic acid, according to police.

A short time later the Fond du Lac police raided a hotel there, arrested three alleged friends of the accused postoffice robbers, and held them for investigation. They said they were Tom Mason 35, Hamilton, Ont., James Burns, alias Joe Dempsey, 60, Milwaukee, James Kimler, 47, Balding, O.

Following the suicide, detective and postal inspectors at Fond du Lac centered the efforts on learning the exact nature of the telephone message and the identity of the speaker. If they are successful, an extraordinary criminal case may develop.

This probably would involve the question of whether a death threat, leading to suicide on the part of the person threatened, would constitute a direct responsibility for the victim's death as would an act of violence against the person of the victim originally.

Floor Hides "Moon"

Police Arrest Joseph Gruss When They Discover Novel Liquor Cache

Marks on the floor in the home of Joseph Gruss, 1519 Williamson st., Thursday afternoon led police and state prohibition agents to a secret chamber under the floor where were stored seven quarts of illicit liquor. Finding of the cache followed a raid by Detective Robert Putnam, Patrolman Clarence Bakken, and Harold Lampert, state chemist. Gruss was arraigned before Judge O. A. Stolen in superior court Friday. He admitted being the illegal possessor. Sentence was deferred by Judge Stolen.

Belleville In Protest Over Road Changes

Highway Commission May Take Action Early In January

Vigorous protest is being registered by citizens of Belleville against the proposed relocation of a portion of state highway No. 42, as planned by the special legislative highway committee. The highway runs from the Green county line due east to Belleville, then turns north to Paoli, and from there runs west about three-quarters of a mile.

The committee proposes to change this road so that it will run diagonally northeast from the Green county line, missing Belleville, and connecting with the present No. 42 at a point three-quarters of a mile west of Paoli. This relocation would place the highway about two and a half miles from Belleville. Paoli residents also object to the change.

In view of this change the committee created a new highway which woud run from Mt. Horeb, through Mt. Vernon and Belleville, to Brooklyn. This road, Belleville residents claim, will not meet the needs of that community.

No decision was reached at the hearing held by the state highway commission at Belleville Wednesday. Members of the commission who attended are W. O. Hotchkiss, chairman, Dean F. E. Turneaure, E. S. Welch, Baraboo, and George Staudenmeyer, Portage. L. C. Anderson, Menomonie, the fifth member of the commission, was not present. The commission expects to hold its next meeting early in January, at which time definite action may be taken to either approve or disapprove of the legislative committee's plans.

Members of the legislative committee are George Staudenmeyer, chairman; Oscar H. Morris, Milwaukee; C. E. Hanson, River Falls; F. A. Frederich, Reedsville, and Richard Kampke, Merrill.

Rebel Chinese Leader Writes Hot Note to U. S.

SYNOPSIS.

At a first night performance in New York, a beautiful young woman attracts attention by rising and leisurely surveying the audience through her glasses. Clavering, a newspaper columnist, and his cousin, Dinwiddie, are particularly interested, Dinwiddie declaring that she is the image of Mary Ogden, a belle of thirty years ago, who had married a Count Zattiany and lived abroad. He is convinced that this is Mary's daughter, but all efforts to establish her identity prove futile.

Clavering manages to meet her, and she tells him she is the Countess Josef Zattiany, a cousin of Mary Ogden's; that she had married a relative of Mary's husband; that Mary is ill in a sanitarium in Vienna.

He does not believe her story and frankly tells her so. Each is aware of a more than passing interest in the other, Clavering, as time goes on, becoming so distraught over the affair that he goes for advice to his friend, Gora Dwight, who is just creating a stir with the publication of her first novel.

XV

She was listening now as Clavering told her of his adventurous meeting with Madame Zattiany, of their subsequent conversations, and of his doubts.

"Are you sure she is not playing a part deliberately?" she asked. "Having her little fun after those horrible years? She looks quite equal to it, and a personal drama would have its attractions after an experience during which a nurse felt about as personal as an amputated limb. And while one is still young and beautiful—what a lark!"

"No. I don't believe anything of the sort. I fancy that if she didn't happen to be so fond of the theatre she'd have come and gone and none of us been the wiser. Her secret is sui generis, whatever it is. I've racked my mind in vain. I don't believe she is the Countess Zattiany's daughter, nor a third cousin, nor the Countess Josef Zattiany. I've tried to recall every mystery story I ever read that would bear on the case, but I'm as much in the dark as ever."

"And you've thought of nothing else. Your column has fallen off."

"Do you think that?" He sat up. "I've not been too satisfied myself."

"You've been filling up with letters from your correspondents after the fashion of more jaded columnists. Even your comments on them have been flat. And as for your description of that prize fight last night, it was about as thrilling as an account of a flower show."

He laughed and dropped back. "You are as refreshing as a cold shower, Gora. But, after all, even a poor columnist must be allowed to slump occasionally. However, I'll turn her off hereafter when I sit down to my typewriter. Lord knows a typewriter is no Wagnerian orchestra and should be warranted to banish sentiment. . . . Sentiment is not the word, though. It is plain raging curiosity."

"Oh, no, it is not," said Miss Dwight coolly, lighting another cigarette, which she carefully fitted into a pair of small gold tongs; neither ink nor nicotine was ever seen on those long aristocratic fingers. "You are in love with her, my child."

"I am not!"

"Oh, yes, you are. I've never been misled for a moment by your other brief rhapsodies—the classic Anne—the demoniac Marian—but you're landed high and dry this time. The mystery may have something to do with it, but the woman has far more. She is the most beautiful creature I ever beheld and she looks intelligent and keen in spite of that monumental repose. And what a great lady!" Gora sighed. How she once had longed to be a great lady! She no longer cared a fig about it, and would not have changed her present state for that of a princess in a stable world. But old dreams die hard. There was no one of Madame Zattiany's abundant manifestations of high fortune that she admired more. "Go in and win, Clavey—and without too much loss of time. She'll be drawn into her own world here sooner or later. She confesses to being a widow, so you needn't get tangled up in an intrigue."

"You forget she is also a very rich woman. I'd look like a fortune h— sp—"

"How old-fashioned of you! And you'd feel like nothing of the sort. The only thing that worries you at present is that you are trying to hide from yourself that you are in love with her."

"I wonder! I don't feel any raging desire for her—that I can swear."

"You simply haven't got that far. The mystery has possessed your mind and your doubts have acted as a censor. But once let yourself go . . ."

"And suppose she turned me down—which, no doubt, she would do. I'm not hunting for tragedy."

"I've an idea she won't. While you've been talking I've written out the whole story in my mind. For that matter, I began it last Monday night when I saw you two whispering together. I was in the box just above—if you noticed! And I watched her face. It was something more than politely interested."

"Oh, she looked the same when she was talking to Din and Osborne that night at dinner. She is merely a woman of the world who has had scores of men in love with her and is young enough to be interested in any young man who doesn't bore her. To say nothing of keeping her hand in. . . . But there is something else." He moved restlessly. "She seems to me to be compounded of strength, force, power. She emanates, exudes it. I'm afraid of being afraid of her. I prefer to be stronger than my wife."

"'Oh, no, it is not,' said Miss Dwight, 'You are in love with her.'"

"Don't flatter yourself. Women are always stronger than their husbands, unless they are the complete idiot or man-crazy. Neither type would appeal to you. The average woman—all the millions of her—has a moral force and strength of character and certain shrewd mental qualities, however unintellectual, that dominate a man every time. This woman has all that and more—a thousand times more. A mighty good thing if she would take you in hand. She'd be the making of you, for you'd learn things about men and women and life—and yourself—that you've never so much as guessed. And then you'd write a play that would set the town on fire. That's all you need. Even if she treated you badly the result would be the same. Life has been much too kind to you, Clavey, and your little disappointments have been so purely romantic that only your facile emotions have played about like amiable puppies on the roof of your passions. It's time the lava began to boil and the lid blew off. Your creative tact would get a ploughing up and a fertilizing as a natural sequence. Your plays would no longer be mere models of architecture. I am not an amiable altruist. I don't long to see you happy. I'm rather inclined to hate this woman who will end by infatuating you, for, of course, that would be the last I'd ever see of you. But I'm an artist and I believe that art is really all that is worth living for. I want you to do great work, and I want you to be a really great figure in New York instead of a merely notable one."

"You've both taken the conceit out of me and bucked me up. . . . But I want you to meet her, and I don't know how to bring it about. I have an idea that your instinct would get somewhere near the truth."

"Suppose I give a party, and, a day or two before, you ask her casually if she would like to come—or put it to her in any way you think best. Nobody calls these days, but I have an idea she would. People of that type rarely renounce the formalities. Then, if I'm really clever, I'll make her think she'd like to see me again and she will be at home when I return her call. Do you think you could work it?"

"It's possible. I've roused her curiosity about our crowd and I'll plant a few more seeds. Yes, I think she'll come. When will you have it?"

"A week from Saturday."

"Good. You're a brick, Gora. And don't imagine you'll ever get rid of me. If she is unique, so are you. This fireside will always be a magnet."

Miss Dwight merely smiled.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S CHRISTMAS HOLLY

Copyright, 1923, by Mc Clure Newspaper Syndicate

"Uncle Wiggily! We have forgotten something," exclaimed Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy in the hollow stump bungalow one morning.

"Forgotten something. What do you mean?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"I mean we have no holly wreaths for Christmas," went on the muskrat lady housekeeper. "Will you get a few to hang up around the bungalow? The red berries look so pretty nestled in the green leaves."

"Ha! That's so! I forgot all about the holly!" said Uncle Wiggily. "And I'll get some mistletoe, also."

"Mistletoe is more for New Year's" said Nurse Jane. "Just get the holly now. And please hurry back with it, as I must make it up into wreaths and it takes rather a long time."

"Why so?" the rabbit gentleman wanted to know.

"Because holly is so priekery and stickery," answered Nurse Jane. "The leaves, though they are glossy green, and very pretty, have sharp spines on them, like slivers, and they stick you if you are not slow and careful while making the Christmas wreaths."

"Well, I hope you don't get stuck and slivered, Nurse Jane," spoke Uncle Wiggily.

"Thank you," answered the muskrat lady. "And I hope you don't get scratched bringing home the holly branches."

"I'll be careful," promised the bunny gentleman.

Then, twinkling his pink nose and seeing that his tie was on straight, Mr. Longears hopped over the fields toward the wood, where, as he knew, some holly trees and bushes grew. For holly is a sort of a bush, though, in time, it may grow up into a tree. On the branches grow the green leaves, stiff and shiny, and on the edges of the leaves are the sharp stickers.

Nestling down in the leaves are red berries, like coral beads, only brighter in color, and that is why holly is such a beautiful garland to decorate our homes with at Christmas time.

"Ah, I see some holly!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily, as he jumped over a fence, hopped across a clearing and made his way into a clump of trees. "Now Nurse Jane shall have her Christmas wreaths."

He began to hop towards home.

Uncle Wiggily wore a pair of heavy gloves, and it was well that he did, for otherwise the prickers on the leaves would have stuck him. As it was, however, Uncle Wiggily could break off the holly branches without much trouble.

Uncle Wiggily found growing in the woods some trailing vines of the wild honeysuckle.

"These vines will make a good and strong cord with which to tie up the bunch of holly," thought Uncle Wiggily. "Then I can swing the green leaves and red berries over my shoulder on the end of my red, white and blue striped rheumatism crutch and carry them home."

Working carefully, so he wouldn't stick himself, Uncle Wiggily tied up a bunch of holly with a wild honeysuckle vine and slung the bunch of green leaves and red berries from the end of his crutch.

"It is good that my rheumatism doesn't hurt me today, and that I do not need to lean on my crutch," thought the bunny as he began to hop toward home.

"Our bungalow will look beautiful for Christmas," said Uncle Wiggily, speaking aloud in his happiness.

"I know something that look beautiful to me right now—without waiting for Christmas!" suddenly growled a most unpleasant voice.

"What is it?" asked the bunny, before he had thought.

"Your ears look beautiful—that's what I mean!" went on the growling voice, and out of the bushes jumped the Bad Bushy Bear! "Your ears look good to nibble!" growled the Bear.

"Oh, dear!" sighed Uncle Wiggily. "Are you going to nibble them now?" he asked, sadly.

"No, not just now and not right here," answered the Bear. "You will walk along with me until we come to my den. Then I'll take you in and nibble your ears. If I nibble them out here in the open, the Fox, Wolf or Bob Cat might see me and want some. And there are not nibbles enough for me as it is. Come now, walk along with me!"

The Bad Bushy Bear walked along beside Uncle Wiggily. The bunny was still carrying over his shoulder the bunch of prickly holly on his crutch. All of a sudden the bunny thought of the Bear's soft and tender nose.

"I'll swing the holly around in front of me and make it scratch and prick the Bear's nose!" thought the bunny. "Then maybe he will let me go!"

No sooner thought of than done! Uncle Wiggily swung the bunch of "Stickery! Ickery!" went the holly around in front of him. sharp points in the Bear's nose.

"Oh, wow. What's this, Bushie! Snuschie!" howled the bad chap. Then, holding his paws over his pricked nose, away off through the woods he ran.

"Are you going to nibble my ears?" called Uncle Wiggily.

"No, No! my nose is too sore," howled the Bear.

"Ha Ha," laughed the bunny, and then he hopped safey home with the Christmas holly and all was well.

But if the fcot of the class does not try to shake hands with the clock and make the little mouse late for the movies, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the Christmas tree.

HOW THOR GOT HIS HAMMER

The Northmen believed in elves and dwarfs as well as in giants. The elves were supposed to be very small, and to dwell in caves and other secret places under the earth. Some elves were good, others bad.

Elves enter an old story about Loki and Thor, two Norse gods. You have already heard of Thor. Loki was the fire god. He was fair of face, but evil of heart.

Thor had a lovely wife with long golden hair. Her name was Sif. One day, while she slept, Loki cut off her hair. When Thor learned what had happened, he was enraged. He was sure Loki must have played the trick and caught him. The fire god confessed. Thor would have choked him, but he promised to give back Sif's hair.

The truth was that Loki didn't have the hair any longer, but he went to some of his elf friends and asked them to make some hair like Sif's. They set to work and spun long strands of finest gold. They looked like strands of silken hair. Taking these strands to heaven, Loki placed them on Sif's head.

The elves also made for Loki a spear which went straight to the maker, no matter how poorly thrown. He gave this spear to Odin, and to Greyer, god of summer, he gave a wondrous boat.

Loki began to brag that his elves were the most clever in the world.

A dwarf named Brock happened to be nearby. He shouted:

"I'll bet my head that my brother and I can make better gifts."

Loki took the bet. Brock went away and brought back three marvelous gifts. One of these was a hammer for Thor. It could be used to make thunder. The gods decided in favor of Brock.

Loki did not want to pay the bet so he ran away. Thor chased and caught him. Then Loki grinned and said to Brock:

"All right, you can have my head but not a bit of my neck."

The dwarf was outwitted. The best he could do was to sew Loki's lips together, but the crafty god soon cut the thread so he could speak again.

The Story of an Artist's Wife

As Told to Grace Phelps

RAI PLEADS HIS CAUSE

I made no further attempt to conciliate Rai, but let my grief flood over me unrestrained. I did not care how it might affect him or my chances of escape. All that was a matter of indifference now.

Raj was puzzled at first and wary. But as I was so evidently not acting he grew alarmed and demanded to know what was the matter. When I made no reply beyond a shrug he began to plead with me.

"Do not be distressed," he said. "I promise you I shall not hurt you. You shall have every freedom any American girl has with her husband. Only," (his voice grew determined,) "you must marry me!"

I shook my head but did not attempt to argue the point.

"You shall have everything you wish," he went on. "You spoke a moment ago about my pouring the wealth of the Indies at your feet. It is true—far more true than you imagine. My father is the wealthiest Maharajah in India—so wealthy in fact that he does not know how much money he has. And there are coffers of wonderful jewels that will be at your disposal."

I listened while he poured out description after description of his father's wealth and the fact that as the oldest son, most of it would come to him.

"Are you afraid, perhaps," he asked suddenly, "that you will not be the only wife? It is an old custom in India to have plural wives. But I am of the West as well as the East. I swear you will be the one and only wife!"

This objection naturally had not occurred to me, so little thought had I given to his lovemaking.

Now, I could not refrain from ing who the woman was who brought me to his rooms.

Rai grew visibly embarrassed my question and answered:

'She is not my wife, if that what you mean!"

I laughed. The evasion was apparent for me to mistake.

"I shall put her away when marry me," he hastened to "She means nothing to me!"

He mistook my meaning and face brightened once more.

"That is good!" he said. "I afraid you might not underst that one of our Indian customs."

"It is as good as any other, said indifferently. "Men are alike!"

He looked puzzled at this, went on to outline further the vantages I would have as his w

As I listened to his pleading began to feel for the first time pang of pity for him. He was much in love. That was evident.

"It is no good, Rai," I said fi ly. "You might just as well s pleading, in the first place, I not free to marry you. And in second place"— suppressed a as I realized how hopeless my case was—"I am still in love w my husband!"
